

Sub Skipper Sinks First Jap Ship On Dec. 8, 1941

By RICHARD O'MALLEY
Pearl Harbor, June 8 (AP)—Lt. Cmdr. Chester C. Smith, a mild-mannered native of Bisbee, Ariz., has the distinction of being the first man to make a submarine attack against the Japanese in the Pacific.

Smith's sortie, which occurred as America received the full impact of the attack on Pearl Harbor, collected for him and his men a number of "firsts."

He made the first successful U. S. submarine attack of the Pacific war, suffered the first depth charging and made the first submerged approach in battle.

Smith, who graduated from high school in Boise, Idaho, conned the submarine Swordfish out of a Philippines harbor December 8. Behind him, on Nichols and Clark airfields, American planes still smoldered from Japanese attacks, and bombs splattered on Manila harbor.

Starts First Patrol
The 40-year-old submarine skipper began his search for the enemy just 19 hours after the Japanese struck, but it was a far different patrol than those conducted by American submarines today.

The Swordfish, since reported lost after she had been turned over to another commander, carried with her more than just Americans seeking to return the blow against the enemy. The first submarine to leave for battle, she became a symbol of America's wrath.

It was the night of his initial patrol that the first Japanese ship to be sunk in the Pacific by submarine wallowed into periscope view. Skipper Smith, without the elaborate equipment carried on today's submarines, maneuvered the Swordfish into position. Seconds later, torpedoes cut the phosphorescent waters of the South Pacific. There was a sharp explosion and the enemy vessel settled slowly in the water. Presently she lurched beneath the surface.

Tangled In Chains
The Swordfish had got away to a good start but she was in waters bustling with enemy warcraft escorting scores of ships carrying supplies and troops in Japan's early Pacific sweep.

As Smith dived to escape detection after mortally wounding the enemy vessels, chains clanked against her hull. Skipper and crew held their breath, waiting for a mine to explode, but the Swordfish moved on.

A few days later torpedoes again darted from the Swordfish at a Japanese merchantman, but it was not certain whether she sank.

The Swordfish took her first depth charging during an approach on an enemy convoy. Smith had brought a heavily-loaded freighter into range and slammed two torpedoes amidships. The ship caught (Please Turn to Page 7)

"E" BOND TOTAL $319,000 SHORT OF COUNTY GOAL

Less than $4,000 north of E bonds were sold to individuals in Adams county during the past 24 hours according to reports received at the County War Finance Committee offices here this morning.

As a result of the meager sales the county total of E bond sales thus far in the campaign is only $380,219.25, more than $319,000 short of the $700,000 goal, with only 23 more working days in which to reach the quota.

Pfc. Harold E. Cramer, Sgt. John S. Kohler, Cpl. Robert M. Reinhold, Francis D. Shultz, Pfc. George D. Deardorff, Pvt. Joseph Sanders.

Clears Misunderstanding

To clarify some misunderstanding that has arisen in the current drive, Edmund W. Thomas, county chairman, addressed the following communication to volunteer war bond workers:

"Some question has arisen regarding the credit slip, included in the application blank, by which credit to any group is allocated. It is possible for one person to make a safe give credit to another group, if he wishes to do so. This matter is entirely discretionary, and our purpose in writing you this letter is to call your attention to this fact and to ask you to instruct all those in your group selling bonds to bear this point in mind.

"Another thing. There is some confusion as to where these credit slips are to go. Will you please inform your workers that, in the case of groups within the county committee—Education, Agriculture, Labor, Women's Division, for instance—these slips should be sent to the chairman of that particular group to which credit is allocated? If credit is given to perhaps a club, the slips should be given to a designated person within it. All those receiving such slips should continue to hold them and give publicity on sales to the newspaper.

"As of this evening, we have reached, unofficially, only 53 per cent of our E bond quota. We have about 23 days in which to make the remaining 47 per cent. It can be done if we put special effort into our sales activities. It cannot be done if we don't. We cannot wait for sales to come to us. We must approach everybody."

Hand-To-Hand Fight Expected To Wind-Up Struggle For Okinawa

By HAMILTON W. FARON

Sgt. Donald Little Wounded On Okinawa

Sgt. Donald J. Little, 29, grandson of Mrs. Sallie Little, North street, McSherrystown, has been wounded in action. He was wounded in the left shoulder while fighting on Okinawa on May 19, according to word received by a friend in McSherrystown. He was down to Guam and underwent an operation there.

Sgt. Little has been in the service for 35 months. He has been in the Pacific Theater of War for 28 months and took part in several major engagements. He expects to return to the U. S. in several weeks.

TATE WOUNDED BY NAZI SNIPERS

Home with a Purple Heart medal and a scarred right hand where a sniper's bullet found its mark, Pfc. Paul A. Tate, 25-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Tate, Arendtsville, agrees that he was "mighty lucky" to come through two months of combat in a machine gun platoon of an infantry regiment with no more serious wounds.

Tate spent last Christmas Day riding a box car toward the Belgian Bulge and munching C rations. The former Gettysburg Times news boy went into combat early in January and helped push back the Germans in the "bulge" sector. He fought with the Golden Acorn division of the Third Army.

On March 5 Tate's outfit was attacking a German-held town when a shell hit nearby and shrapnel hit the shovels which Tate was carrying over his hip. The shovels were dented but Tate was unhurt. Two days later a sniper's bullet caught him as he climbed from a slit trench to move up his machinegun in fighting near a town close to Coblenz.

He was removed to a regimental hospital and then to a field hospital in Luxembourg where steel was removed from the wound, then to Paris and England and on May 23 to the States. He reached home Wednesday on a 30-day leave.

Pfc. Tate entered service June 21, 1941, trained at Camp Blanding, Fla., and went overseas December 9. His brother, also a former Times carrier, is a first lieutenant with Air Corps Engineers in the south Pacific.

Glenn Slaybaugh At English Depot

1st Base Air Depot, Warrington, England—V-J day found Pfc. Glenn L. Slaybaugh of Gardners R. 2, Pa., on the job, helping to ready more combat planes and equipment for immediate action wherever they might be needed.

Pfc. Slaybaugh, son of Marks Slaybaugh is one of the crack Air Service command team who pitched in to back the air assaults that helped knock Germany out of the war.

Commenting their battle-backing efforts, Brigadier General Morris Berman, Commanding General of the Base Air Depot area, Air Service command, declared: "These soldiers of the Base Air Depot have, since their work began, dispatched 415,000 tons of air corps supplies, assembled and modified 12,000 combat planes, and repaired or overhauled more than 39,000 aircraft engines."

"Every soldier, whatever his job, contributed materially to the magnificent final result. I commend them, and I know that whatever their next task, they will fulfill it with credit to themselves and their country."

New Federal Use Stamps Available

Postmaster Lawrence E. Orler announced today that the new federal auto use stamps at the usual price of $5 each—go on sale Saturday morning at the Gettysburg post-office. The new stamps are required on and after July 1.

Last year federal agents put on an enforcement campaign here and other nearby points after the deadline for stamp purchases passed.

Guam, June 8 (AP)—American troops plunged today into the final battle for Okinawa, with every expectation of having to use grenades in hand-to-hand combat and to call upon flame throwing tanks before this bloody doorstep to Japan could be called "secure."

Japanese remnants of the smashed Naha-Shuri-Yonabaru line—possibly 20,000 troops—were cut into two separate groups but both were well entrenched. One was squeezed between the Sixth and First Marine Divisions when the latter advanced 900 yards yesterday to within 300 yards of the west coast, north of Itoyan town. This maneuver cut off Oroku peninsula.

The second was well entrenched in the Yaeju-Dake heights, an escarpment rising to 450 feet in the center and stretching from Itoyan to Hanagusuku on the eastern coast.

In both sectors, the Japanese were defending their positions with intense machinegun and mortar fire. On the Oroku peninsula, Japanese also turned 20 and 40mm. gunfire on the Americans.

In China

Chungking, June 8 (AP)—The Chinese high command announced today that Chinese forces had fought their way into the northern suburbs of Luchow and an army spokesman declared the recapture of that former U. S. air base site in Kwangsi province appeared probable.

The spokesman also expressed belief it was quite possible that Kwailin, another former U. S. air base site approximately 100 miles northeast of Luchow, would fall to the Chinese.

He estimated that approximately 200,000 Japanese troops in Burma, Thailand, Indo-China and Malaya had been virtually isolated by the Chinese offensive in Kwangsi province, which has driven a deep wedge into the enemy's north-south communications corridor.

The high command's announcement concerning Chinese operations in the vicinity of Luchow made it plain that unofficial reports two days ago to the effect that the city already had fallen were premature.

A battle for the city apparently was taking shape. The Chinese said the enemy, which has occupied the base for seven months, had strongly fortified the area and that a large number of Japanese troops were concentrated there.

Philippines

Manila, June 8 (AP)—American infantrymen advancing toward the last-stand Japanese forces in Cagayan valley of the northern Philippines, yesterday captured Bayombong, prewar city on northern Luzon which the Japanese turned into a supply base.

The U. S. 37th Division found no strong Japanese defenses in Bayombong, which had a prewar population of 12,000, although they killed 119 Japanese in a seven mile advance and knocked out two flame-throwing tanks. These were believed to be the first such Japanese tanks encountered in the southwest Pacific.

Infantrymen drove to the enemy supply base after capturing Bambang Wednesday, sealing off the enemy's lateral road running across the Cordillera central mountains to a point north of Baguio, American-held summer capital of the commonwealth.

Patrols pressed up the fertile Cagayan valley toward Soranco, a town of 17,000 population before the war.

Boy Scouts Hear F. Mark Bream

F. Mark Bream told members of Boy Scout troop 79 of his experiences in hunting and fishing at a meeting of the troop Thursday evening in the Scout room at St. James' Lutheran church.

Mr. Bream also told of incidents in Buchanan Valley during Indian times. He invited troop members to inspect his collection of coins, stamps and old firearms.

Troop 79, of which Glenn Sherman is Scoutmaster, is preparing to take part in the jamboree near York from June 20 to 23. Prospective members are urged to join now in order to participate in the jamboree.

NABBED ON WIFE'S CHARGE

Raymond Schoffstall, York Springs R. D. 2, was arrested and charged with swindling of the peace by the state police upon complaint brought by his wife, Ida Schoffstall. He was released upon posting $500 bail for trial at August term of court.

As a result of the meager sales the county total of E bond sales thus far in the campaign is only $380,219.25, more than $319,000 short of the $700,000 goal, with only 23 more working days in which to reach the quota.

Six more names have been added to the active service honor roll by the Women's division as follows:

Pfc. Harold E. Cramer, Sgt. John S. Kohler, Cpl. Robert M. Reindollar, Francis D. Shultz, Pfc. George D. Deardorff, Pvt. Joseph Sanders.

Clears Misunderstanding

To clarify some misunderstanding that has arisen in the current drive, Edmund W. Thomas, county chairman, addressed the following communication to volunteer war bond workers:

"Some question has arisen regarding the credit slip, included in the application blank, by which credit to any group is allocated. It is possible for one person to make a sale yet give credit to another group, if he wishes to do so. This matter is entirely discretionary, and our purpose in writing you this letter is to call your attention to this fact and to ask you to instruct all those in your group selling bonds to bear this point in mind.

"Another thing. There is some confusion as to where these credit slips are to go. Will you please inform your workers that, in the case of groups within the county committee—Education, Agriculture, Labor, Women's Division, for instance—these slips should be sent to the chairman of that particular group by which credit is allocated? If credit is given to perhaps a club, the slips should be given to a designated person within it. All those receiving such slips should continue to hold them and give publicity on sales to the newspaper.

"As of this evening, we have reached, unofficially, only 53 per cent of our E bond quota. We have about 23 days in which to make the remaining 47 per cent. It can be done if we put special effort into our sales activities. It cannot be done if we don't. We cannot wait for sales to come to us. We must approach everybody."

Ten thousand dollars worth of Series C war bonds purchased by the Western Maryland Railway company has been allocated to Adams county in the "Mighty Seventh" war loan campaign.

McCoy, treasurer of the company, announced that $10,000 worth of series C war bonds had been allocated to Adams county. Credit of the bond purchases to this county will be made through the Federal Reserve Bank at Baltimore.

The Western Maryland has made an allocation of war bonds to Adams county in each of the drives.

Hand-To-Hand Fight Expected To Wind-Up Struggle For Okinawa

By HAMILTON W. FARON

Guam, June 8 (AP)—American troops plunged today into the final battle for Okinawa, with every expectation of having to use grenades in hand-to-hand combat and to call upon flame throwing tanks before this bloody doorstep to Japan could be called "secure."

Japanese remnants of the smashed Naha-Shuri-Yonabaru line—possibly 20,000 troops—were cut into two separate groups but both were well entrenched. One was squeezed between the Sixth and First Marine Divisions when the latter advanced 900 yards yesterday to within 300 yards of the west coast, north of Itoyan town. This maneuver cut off Oroku peninsula.

The second was well entrenched in the Yaeju-Dake heights, an escarpment rising to 450 feet in the center and stretching from Itoyan to Hanagusuku on the eastern coast.

In both sectors, the Japanese were defending their positions with intense machinegun and mortar fire. On the Oroku peninsula, Japanese also turned 20 and 40mm. gunfire on the Americans.

Jap Position Hopeless

Although the enemy position was hopeless—Tokyo radio itself said so in effect—the Nipponese could hold out several days and make the battle for Okinawa even costlier than it has been.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communique reported 66,324 Japanese had been killed on Okinawa from the April 1 invasion through June 6. This was an increase of 4,805 in the past week. Latest estimates were that the original garrison totaled about 85,000 Japanese troops.

Tokyo radio, contradicting itself from broadcast to broadcast, said today "the Okinawa fighting was never intended to decide the fate of our nation" after quoting newspaper concessions that the battle was virtually lost.

Good Defense

Japanese on Okinawa have the benefit of good defensive terrain, where they already are dug in. On Oroku peninsula—site of U. S. captured Naha airfield—the ground is very rough and Japanese are dug into caves and pillboxes.

Dome reported later that kamikaze pilots resumed their attacks and claimed two American ships were sunk. It said the attacks were continuing. Nimitz' communique made no mention of suicide assaults yesterday, when Dome said they occurred.

There is similarly rough terrain all across the Yaeju-Dake escarpment, where American troops may have to wipe out the Japanese in small groups.

TATE WOUNDED BY NAZI SNIPERS

Home with a Purple Heart medal and a scarred right hand where a sniper's bullet found its mark, Pfc. Paul A. Tate, 25-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Tate, Arendtsville, Pa., agrees that he was "mighty lucky" to come through two months of combat in a machine gun platoon of an infantry regiment with no more serious wounds.

Tate spent last Christmas Day riding a box car toward the Belgian Bulge and munching C rations. The former Gettysburg Times news boy went into combat early in January and helped push back the Germans in the "bulge" sector. He fought with the Golden Acorn division of the Third Army.

On March 5 Tate's outfit was attacking a German-held town when a shell hit nearby and shrapnel hit the shovel which Tate was carrying over his hip. The shovel was dented but Tate was unhurt. Two days later a sniper's bullet caught him as he climbed from a slit trench to move up his machinegun in fighting near a town close to Coblenz.

He was removed to a regimental hospital and then to a field hospital in Luxembourg where steel was removed from the wound, then to Paris and England and on May 28 to the States. He reached home Wednesday on a 30-day leave.

Pfc. Tate entered service June 21, 1944, trained at Camp Blanding, Fla., and went overseas December 9. His brother, also a former Times carrier, is a first lieutenant with Air Corps Engineers in the south Pacific.

In China

Chungking, June 8 (AP)—The Chinese high command announced today that Chinese forces had fought their way into the northern suburbs of Luichow and an army spokesman declared the recapture of that former U. S. air base site in Kwangsi province appeared probable.

The spokesman also expressed belief it was quite possible that Kweilin, another former U. S. air base site approximately 100 miles northeast of Luichow, would fall to the Chinese.

He estimated that approximately 200,000 Japanese troops in Burma, Thailand, Indo-China and Malaya had been virtually isolated by the Chinese offensive in Kwangsi province, which has driven a deep wedge into the enemy's north-south communications corridor.

The high command's announcement concerning Chinese operations in the vicinity of Luichow made it plain that unofficial reports two days ago to the effect that the city already had fallen were premature.

A battle for the city apparently was taking shape. The Chinese said the enemy, which has occupied the base for seven months, had strongly fortified the area and that a large number of Japanese troops were concentrated there.

Philippines

By FRED HAMPSON

Manila, June 8 (AP)—American infantrymen advancing toward the last-stand Japanese forces in Cagayan valley of the northern Philippines, yesterday captured Bayombong, prewar city on northern Luzon which the Japanese turned into a supply base.

The U. S. 37th Division found no strong Japanese defenses in Bayombong, which had a prewar population of 12,000, although they killed 119 Japanese in a seven mile advance and knocked out two flame-throwing tanks. These were believed to be the first such Nipponese tanks encountered in the southwest Pacific.

Infantrymen drove to the enemy supply base after capturing Bambang Wednesday, sealing off the enemy's lateral road running across the Cordillera central mountains to a point north of Baguio, American-held summer capital of the commonwealth.

Patrols pressed up the fertile Cagayan valley toward Sorano, a town of 17,000 population before the war.

Boy Scouts Hear F. Mark Bream

F. Mark Bream told members of Boy Scout troop 79 of his experiences in hunting and fishing at a meeting of the troop Thursday evening in the Scout room at St. James Lutheran church.

Mr. Bream also told of incidents in Buchanan Valley during Indian times. He invited troop members to inspect his collection of coins, stamps and old firearms.

Troop 79, of which Glenn Sherman is Scoutmaster, is preparing to take part in the jamboree near York from June 20 to 23. Prospective members are urged to join now in order to participate in the jamboree.

Jap Suicide Bases Bombed

Guam, June 8 (AP)—Successive waves of carrier planes raided suicide air bases in southern Japan today and superforts planted mines in inland waters. Tokyo reported shortly after warning Japanese that "medium and small size cities" would be pounded by B-29s just as their major cities have.

The carrier strike by 200 aircraft was the third reported raid in as many days on air fields of Kyushu, southernmost island of Japan.

While industrial Osaka still smoldered from yesterday's 450-bomber raid Tokyo radio told the people that Superfort attacks "will be all the more frequent, bombing objectives will be enlarged, and we can expect that medium and small cities in local areas, as well as the large cities," will be hit.

So far the huge bombers have made large-scale attacks on the major cities of Japan, including Tokyo, Osaka, Nagoya, Yokohama and Kobe.

A combination rain of high explosives and 3,000 tons of incendiaries set fires raging through the arsenal and munitions-making area of Osaka yesterday.

Smoke clouds rising to 25,000 feet today still obscured the damage. Returning B-29 fliers said fighter opposition was meager but anti-aircraft fire was heavy.

NABBED ON WIFE'S CHARGE

EMPLOYES OF FOUNDRY DINE

Judge W. C. Sheely, president judge of the Adams-Fulton judicial district, told of the part Adams county has played and is playing in the nation's war effort in an address Wednesday night at the quarterly dinner-meeting of the employees of the Littlestown Hardware and Foundry company. More than 80 persons, workers and guests, were in attendance at the dinner, held in the social hall of St. John's Lutheran church.

In addition to hearing of the county's part in the war effort, the foundry workers heard the story of the LSM (R) 195, landing ship medium, which was lost to enemy action off Okinawa early last month. Three survivors of the vessel—Lieut. W. E. Woodson, Ensign A. G. Ealy and Harold Catepole, Y. 1-c—were guests at the dinner. The owners (Please Turn to Page 2)

He is a graduate of Gettysburg high school and was a member of the sophomore class at the Shippenburg State Teachers' college at the time of his induction.

Glenn Slaybaugh At English Depot

1st Base Air Depot, Warrington, England—V-E day found Pfc. Glenn L. Slaybaugh of Gardners R. 2, Pa., on the job, helping to ready more combat planes and equipment for immediate action wherever they might be needed.

Pfc. Slaybaugh, son of Marks Slaybaugh is one of the crack Air Service command team who pitched in to back the air assaults that helped knock Germany out of the war.

Commenting their battle-backing efforts, Brigadier General Morris Berman, Commanding General of the Base Air Depot area, Air Service command, declared: "These soldiers of the Base Air Depot have, since their work began, dispatched 415,000 tons of air corps supplies, assembled and modified 12,000 combat planes, and repaired or overhauled more than 30,000 aircraft engines.

Pfc. Slaybaugh has been overseas since October 7, 1943 and joined the army in April, 1943.

APPROVAL FOR BRETTON WOODS PACT ASSURED

By FRANCIS LE MAY Washington, June 7 (AP)—Overwhelming House approval of the Brettton Woods agreements apparently was assured today. The chamber came to a vote on the most far-reaching legislation for postwar international cooperation yet to reach Congress.

A test vote yesterday showed 129 to 18 for ratification, and opponents conceded they did not expect more than 25 or 30 of the 433 House members to vote "no" on the final rollcall.

The agreements, drawn by representatives of 44 nations meeting last summer at Brettton Woods, N. H., propose to establish a $3,169,000,000 world bank for reconstruction and development loans and an $8,800,- 000,000 fund for international currency stabilization.

"A Swindle and Fraud" Rep. Sumner (R-Ill.), a leader of the opposition, said the legislation will pass the House but added: "It will be a different story when the bill goes to the Senate."

The first House test came on a motion by Miss Sumner to strike from the measure all reference to the monetary fund, which she described as a "swindle and a fraud."
She contended the stabilization effort, as embodied in the agreements, would "finance currency depreciation and debt repudiation."

After her motion was lost, Rep.
Wolcott (R-Mich.) who led minority support of the bill, said "it is indicative of a bi-partisan desire to cooperate in effectuating stability in world trade."

The late President Roosevelt last February said Brettton Woods "is the cornerstone for international economic cooperation," and President Truman, in a letter read in the House Tuesday, declared the plan paramount "in establishment of a sound economic foundation for lasting peace."

Bank's Purposes
Treasury department officials outlined these purposes of the agreement:

- World bank—
1. To encourage international investment in productive enterprise.
2. Make long term currency stabilization loans to countries whose currency encountered difficulty.

Uses Of Capital
Of the $3,169,000,000 bank capital, the United States would subscribe $3,175,000,000.

- Fund—
1. To stabilize the currencies of all cooperating nations in terms of gold.
2. Progressively remove barriers against making payments across international boundaries.
3. Provide a revolving fund of foreign exchange to enable member countries to maintain stable and unrestricted currency relationships.
Each country would contribute gold and local currency to a common pool in the fund. Of the $8,800,000,- 000 assets the United States would subscribe $2,750,000,000.

THEMA THOMPSON

Chapter 19
It was two days before Christmas.
No unseled tree glimmered in the living room of the Lambert house.
Lucia had told them that she couldn't have the tree on her new rug. Francis would direct no program at the Community Building and give no drive at the clubhouse on Christmas Eve; he and Lucia were leaving today.
Kay trembled with eagerness and anticipation, impatient for them to be gone. For she had plans, too.
She meant to call Fox Warner and ask him to have Christmas dinner with her.

They'd have dinner at noon in the morning they'd make several visits over Lowell, beginning with the hospital. Oh, if he'd only accept her invitation. . . .

At last they were gone. Lucia and Francis. Kay thought as she kissed her father: I hope he'll come back with the worry gone from his face. Perhaps they'll grow closer while on this trip alone.

After a few moments she lifted the telephone. Her hands were trembling, though her voice was steady when she gave his number.
She knew that number perfectly;
she had whispered it over and over many times.

Yes, Dr. Warner was in the office. She told her. Yes, she might speak with him.

Then his voice. Kay held her breath ecstatically for a moment.
She had planned a casual speech, but suddenly it was gone from her mind and she said simply, "I'm alone for Christmas Day. Will you have dinner with me?"

There was a slight hesitation at the other end of the line, and then Kay caught the note of eagerness in his voice when he answered,
"You're a lifesaver. I had only a lonely day ahead."

You see this is the first time I've had the house to myself and Dr.
Warner is alone, so I just thought — Her voice trailed off miserably.
Babs rose and moved to the radio
—"It would be nice for you two to get together," she murmured, "but I'd be sorry for Jimmy."
Presently Kay spoke, "Well, I'll break my date with the doctor.
Babs," she said, "I can't hurt
Jimmy. I'm fond of him. You know that."
Babs caught the look of disappointment in her eyes. "Well, don't be hasty," she suggested. "Maybe something will turn up."
"What do you mean?"
Babs looked straight at her. "You want this date with Rex Warner more than anything, don't you?"
"Yes, Oh, yes, I do."
"Well, maybe I can change Jimmy's mind for him."
"Good-bye, Kay." And his voice seemed to linger over her name.
She executed a dance step and turned to find Lucia watching her.
"Oh, Lucia, darling," she cried, "he's coming! He's coming!" Kay leaned closer to the old woman and whispered, "Look in your cup, Lucia, and see if he cares for me."
Lucia's face beamed. "Yassum, he do, I done looked."
"And is everything okay?"
Lucia hesitated and her voice took on a note of worry. "You know I done dropped that cup and broke it all to pieces before I could see any future for you, with that man!"
Kay laugh rang out. "Let the cup break! Tomorrow is my future, Lucia.
Tomorrow is Christmas. With Rex here, and you, and the house to ourselves."
"Yassum. Jest like it used to be."
Babs was displeased when Kay explained her plans for Christmas Day. They were in Babs' living room on Christmas Eve waiting for Ned and Jimmy to arrive to take them to the celebration at the Community Building.
"But, Kay," Babs protested "you promised Jimmy you'd have dinner with him and Mr. Brent." Kay's eyes lost their joy. "I'd forgotten that date with Jimmy."

FINANCE PROBE READY TO START

Harrisburg, June 7 (AP)—The General Assembly's joint state government (research) commission was ready Wednesday to begin a Commonwealth inquiry into operation and management of finance companies dealing in consumer credit.

Franklin H. Lichtenwalter, House Republican leader, was named chairman of the commission's committee to conduct the investigation.
His appointment was announced Tuesday, shortly after the agency met and re-named Ira T. Fiss, speaker of the house, commission chairman.

At the same time Senate President
M. Harvey Taylor was elected vice president, while Lichtenwalter was re-named secretary and A. Alfred Wasserman, counsel.

The finance inquiry was ordered in a resolution approved by the 1945 legislature upon recommendation of Governor Martin who said he had reports of "snarp practices" by some firms.

The legislators, in directing the investigation declared "returning" veterans may become the victims of designing manipulations of dishonest finance companies and other dealing in consumer credit.

TRUMAN NAMES
BRADLEY HEAD OF VETS AFFAIRS

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
Washington, June 8 (AP)—President Truman called today on a four-star general of World War II—Omar N. Bradley—to look after the affairs of veterans of all wars.
And by so doing, he accented once more his inclination to pick westerners for key jobs in his administration. General Bradley, 52 year old commander of the mammoth 12th Army group in Europe, is from Moberly, Mo.
He will succeed Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, retired, who is resigning to take another but undisclosed post offered him by the President. Hines has been head of the Veterans' Administration since 1923, and Mr. Truman said he believed it was time the veterans had someone who served in the current war running their affairs.

Other Appointments
The west and midwest retained their share of other presidential appointments made public yesterday at another of the new chief executive's "hot copy" news conferences. They included:

John B. Hutson, of Kentucky, to be undersecretary of agriculture, and W. Stuart Symington, of St. Louis, to be chairman of the surplus property board.

Hutson, now an assistant to war mobilizer Fred M. Vinson, was named to succeed Grover B. Hill, of Texas, who resigned.

Follows Cabinet Pattern
Symington, president of the Emerson electric company, will succeed former Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa, who asked to step out July 15.

Their selection thus follows the pattern Mr. Truman set in four cabinet designations.

Another appointment announced yesterday was that of an easterner, Paul M. Herzog, of New York city, to be a member of the National Labor relations board to succeed H. A. Mills, resigned. Herzog, former chairman of the New York state labor relations board, has been doing labor relations work for the navy as a reserve lieutenant.

Among other speakers on the program was Dr. Harry Baughman, Gettysburg, who spoke in behalf of the Seventh War Loan drive. Guests at the dinner included Pfc. Milton Harner, who was wounded in action in Europe; Pfc. Earl Sanders, a former prisoner of the Germans; Cpl. Lewis Fox, who was wounded and who recently was discharged under the point system; Sgt. Judge Sheely was introduced by L. D. Snyder, secretary-treasurer of the foundry company, Edward Loeffel chairman of the shop committee for 1945, served as toastmaster. The dinner was served by the Rose of Sharon club of St. John's Sunday school. Music was provided by Dean Stover, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Highbotham and Robert Snyder. FACILITIES FOR AIR TRAVEL TO BE EXPANDED

Harrisburg, June 8 (AP)—Given the go-ahead by the Legislature and Governor Martin, the Pennsylvania Aeronautics Commission today declared itself ready to undertake broad expansion of commonwealth air travel facilities "on a common sense basis."

"The pattern is already worked out," said Chairman Floyd Chalfant, "and now we have the appropriation to provide any assistance needed by communities so that Pennsylvania may reap the benefits of this new branch of commerce."

To Screen Applications
A proposed Pennsylvania state airport plan, submitted to the recent general assembly by the commission provided a 10-year program of development costing $34,512,700 and including construction of 148 new airports and extension and improvement of 95 others.

The Legislature gave the commission a $2,725,000 fund to initiate the program during 1945-47 and expanded its authority to make the undertaking possible. The money will be allotted to municipalities on a matching basis for preliminary engineering and construction.

"The commission will screen the applications for assistance very carefully," declared Chalfant. "Each one will be subjected to investigation. We are not going to let communities get wild ideas and come in and say we want $1,000,000."

Community Initiative
"We are not going to let small communities build big airports that would be a dead loss to them. We shall solicit help from community organizations in carrying out this program on a common sense approach."

Chalfant, who also is state secretary of commerce, emphasized that the commission "will insist that the community take the initiative" if it desires help under the program and "we will be glad to give any assistance we can."

Municipalities must acquire an airport site approved by the commission before applying for aid in engineering and construction, said commission Director William L. Anderson. Procedure and application forms are being worked out and will be available soon.

Opposes Destruction Of Training Films

Harrisburg, June 8 (AP)—A broad War department shouldn't destroy non-military surplus training films, Sen. Myers (D-Pa.) believes.

In a letter to Maj. Gen. H. C. Ingles, chief signal officer for the army service forces, Myers differed with a War department contention that to make these films available to the public would "constitute unfair competition" for "legitimate commercial producers."

Ingles had cited this position in answer to a previous letter from the Pennsylvania senator. Myers agreed with Ingles that films involving military security or those containing copyrighted music or stock shots not authorized for public screening should not be sold or given to the public.

He declared, however, that there are many other war department training films which schools, clubs, churches and similar groups would find valuable. He said these include films on auto mechanics, safe driving, food conservation and first aid.

Academies For Girls

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Naval and military academies for women would be established under legislation introduced by Rep. Fulton (R-Pa.).

Increase In Meat Supply To Be Small

Washington, June 8 (AP)—The government's promised increase in meat supplies next fall may turn out to average only 36 ounces more per civilian for the entire October-December period.

This increase over summer supplies would include meats served in public eating places. Consequently the increase in supplies at butcher shops would be somewhat less.

Spread over a 90-day period, this 36-ounce boost would be scarcely noticeable, particularly if civilian demand continues at or near present levels.

TRUMAN NAMES BRADLEY HEAD OF VETS AFFAIRS

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

Washington, June 8 (AP)—President Truman called today on a four-star general of World War II—Omar N. Bradley—to look after the affairs of veterans of all wars.

And by so doing, he accepted once more his inclination to pick westerners for key jobs in his administration. General Bradley, 52-year-old commander of the mammoth 12th Army group in Europe, is from Moberly, Mo.

He will succeed Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, retired, who is resigning to take another but undisclosed post offered him by the President. Hines has been head of the Veterans' Administration since 1923, and Mr. Truman said he believed it was time the veterans had someone who served in the current war running their affairs.

Other Appointments

The west and midwest retained their share of other presidential appointments made public yesterday at another of the new chief executive's "hot copy" news conferences. They included:

John B. Huron, of Kentucky, to be undersecretary of agriculture, and W. Stewart Symington, of St. Louis, to be chairman of the surplus property board.

Huron, now an assistant to war mobilizer Fred M. Vinson, was named to succeed Grover B. Hill, of Texas, who resigned.

Follows Cabinet Pattern

Symington, president of the Emerson electric company, will succeed former Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa, who asked to step out July 15.

Their selection thus follows the pattern Mr. Truman set in four cabinet designations.

Another appointment announced yesterday was that of an easterner, Paul M. Herzog, of New York city, to be a member of the National Labor relations board to succeed H. A. Millis, resigned. Herzog, former chairman of the New York state labor relations board, has been doing labor relations work for the navy as a reserve lieutenant.

FACILITIES FOR AIR TRAVEL TO BE EXPANDED

Harrisburg, June 8 (AP)—Given the go-ahead by the Legislature and Governor Martin, the Pennsylvania Aeronautics Commission today declared itself ready to undertake broad expansion of commonwealth air travel facilities "on a common sense basis."

"The pattern is already worked out," said Chairman Floyd Chaffant, "and now we have the appropriation to provide any assistance needed by communities so that Pennsylvania may reap the benefits of this new branch of commerce."

To Screen Applications

A proposed Pennsylvania state airport plan submitted to the recent general assembly by the commission provided a 10-year program of development costing $34,512,700, and including construction of 148 new airports and extension and improvement of 95 others.

The Legislature gave the commission a $2,725,000 fund to initiate the program during 1945-47 and expanded its authority to make the undertaking possible. The money will be allotted to municipalities on a matching basis for preliminary engineering and construction.

"The commission will screen the applications for assistance very carefully," declared Chaffant. "Each one will be subjected to investigation. We are not going to let communities get wild ideas and come in and say we want $1,000,000."

Community Initiative

"We are not going to let small communities build big airports that would be a dead loss to them. We shall solicit help from community organizations in carrying out this program on a common sense approach."

Chaffant, who also is state secretary of commerce, emphasized that the commission "will insist that the community take the initiative" if it desires help under the program and "we will be glad to give any assistance we can."

Opposes Destruction Of Training Films

Harrisburg, June 8 (AP)—A broad War department shouldn't destroy non-military surplus training films, Sen. Myers (D-Pa.) believes.

Ingles had cited this position in answer to a previous letter from the Pennsylvania senator.

Myers agreed with Ingles that films involving military security or those containing copyrighted music or stock shots not authorized for public screening should not be sold or given to the public.

He declared, however, that there are many other war department training films which schools, clubs, churches and similar groups would find valuable. He said these include films on auto mechanics, safe driving, food conservation and first aid.

Proposes Military Academies For Girls

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Naval and military academies for women would be established under legislation introduced by Rep. Fulton (R-Pa.).

A navy officer—veteran of this war, Fulton said in a statement, that the women's academies should be set up to use existing women's college facilities "with special emphasis on the education of women of the administration supply personnel and communications divisions of both the army and the navy."

Increase In Meat Supply To Be Small

Washington, June 8 (AP)—The government's promised increase in meat supplies next fall may turn out to average only 26 ounces more per civilian for the entire October-December period.

This increase over summer supplies would include meats served in public eating places. Consequently the increase in supplies at butcher shops would be somewhat less.

Spread over a 90-day period, this 36-ounce boost would be scarcely noticeable, particularly if civilian demand continues at or near present levels.

SKY'S THE LIMIT

Salt Lake City, (AP)—Hugh L. Thomas, price specialist for the OPA here, was stumped when a woman asked by telephone: "What's the ceiling price on digging up my husband?"

She wanted her husband's body moved to another cemetery and complained $35 was too much "and I know it shouldn't cost more than $15."

Thomas said such service lacked OPA regulation.

Today's Talk

LOSSES AND LESSONS
It would be a sad thing for anyone to win all the time. No one has, however, which is a most fortunate and encouraging thing to ponder upon.

Every loss has its lesson, and that lesson becomes a part of our overall experience. In this tragic war mistakes have been made by the best and most experienced of Generals—but each one has had its lesson well learned.

Cecil Rhodes once was accused of making mistakes. He answered that he probably made as many mistakes, or more, than anyone else in the world—but that he paid no attention to them. But, of course, he did, else he would not have achieved all that he did, for he was a relentless worker—a man of big ideas and vast visions. But he used his mistakes!

All our losses must be placed against our gains. That is the method of the shrewd business man, and of us all, no matter what our vocation in life, if we would learn, grow, and achieve the things that are worth while.

Frank Woolworth, who founded the great dime stores that bear his name, made a miserable failure out of his first efforts, but he kept the idea alive, kept feeding it new ideas, and giving to it new nourishment, until he gained a world-wide fame, crystallizing an idea that became so pronounced a success that immediately there arose imitators and followers—as is always the case, as we all know.

With every loss and setback is always created a new responsibility, and it is responsibility that builds the muscles to character, and which keeps the valves of the heart open for a full and healthy flow of life-giving blood. Every loss houses its own lesson within itself. But you often have to break into that house, capture the lesson—and leave the loss behind—where it belongs!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "The Important Objective."

FRENCH CALL
BIG 5 MEET

Paris, June 8 (AP)—Authoritative quarters said Thursday the French government had formally invited other members of the big five to participate in a conference on the middle east.

French embassies in Washington, London, Moscow and Chungking were instructed to present the invitation, along with a short statement of France's reasons for calling the conference. A responsible source said no note was delivered in connection with the invitations.

This will require formal answers from the other countries. Prime Minister Churchill, at odds with Gen. De Gaulle over the situation in Syria, told Commons Tuesday that a five-power conference would "cause a great deal of delay and require very careful consideration on many grounds." He sought immediate mediation by the United States, Britain and France.

PUTS PARLEY
'OVER THE HILL'By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(Associated Press Diplomatic News Editor)

San Francisco, June 8 (AP)—Small nation acceptance of a Big-Five veto voting formula for a world security council today appeared certain. A successful end of the United Nations conference is in sight.

Russia's dramatic acceptance of a statement that the big-power veto could not be used to block discussion of any case presented to the council broke a week-old deadlock yesterday and put the conference over the hill.

Ten days to two weeks more of committee work and speech-making remain to get the United Nations charter in final shape for signing, but no more major issues are on the horizon.

Acted for Unanimity

It took the combined efforts of Premier Stalin, Harry Hopkins, who was then in Moscow, and Secretary of State Stettinius, who acted with President Truman's approval, to end the deadlock. Hopkins, on instructions from Stettinius, asked Stalin to reconsider Soviet insistence that any of the Big Five could veto even discussion in the peace-enforcement council of an international dispute.

The other four major powers did not want a single veto vote to block roundtable talk.

Stalin reversed the Soviet position, acting, according to his spokesmen here, in the interest of unanimity and to speed the conference to success.

Last night drafting experts of the Big-Five powers gave final shape to a statement of just how the Yalta voting formula would work out in the security council. This statement is designed to answer 22 questions submitted by small nations more than two weeks ago.

Expect Acceptance

It goes before a conference committee today and Senator Connally (D-Tex.), American member of the committee, said he would urge immediate action, so that this and other conference business which has been delayed by the veto fight can speedily be cleared away.

Connally predicted that the small nations would accept the veto voting arrangement as defined in the statement although, he said, "there may be some objections."

Conference authorities generally agreed that these objections would be raised by delegates who, like Foreign Minister Herbert Evatt of Australia, strongly oppose the veto in principle. But the widespread feeling was that the prolonged struggle of the big powers to get together had taken most of the wind out of the opposition's sails.

The statement describes in detail how the Big Five would have to concur in any effective decision to enforce peace and how they would also have to concur on peaceful efforts to settle disputes, except that any nation party to a dispute would not vote at all on peaceful settlement.

Procedural questions would be decided by a majority of any seven members of the 11-nation council, so that, in an extreme case, the council could make an affirmative decision if only one of the big powers voted with the six small nations.

Dog Ticks And Spotted Fever

Rocky Mountain spotted fever is now common throughout the East, so common, in fact, that every person, urban as well as rural, should know and practice preventive measures to protect themselves from this deadly disease. Perhaps all fatalities from spotted fever are never accurately known, for numerous deaths from it may be easily attributed to typhus or meningitis.

The tick's life story is necessary to know as well as interesting. The female tick lays an enormous number of eggs in woods, weed-infested nooks and even in dense grass. These hatch into tiny seed ticks that pass through the nymph stages and soon into egg-laying adults. At no stage of its development is the tick able to support itself. It lives an entire life cycle of parasitism. In other words, it feeds only on the blood of animals, principally mice, rats, ground squirrels and other rodents, but even on horses and dogs. If no other host is at hand, the tick will fasten itself on a human being to feed.

For example, a tick feeds on a diseased animal and later attaches itself to a human being, and thereby it carries the dread fever virus. Authorities believe no more than one out of every one hundred ticks carries spotted fever, yet no one can distinguish the carrier from the harmless tick. Therefore, every tick must be feared and shunned. There is no safe ground to risk where human beings and ticks exist together.

Don't Wait For Doctor
Ticks usually migrate upward on the person they reach and attach themselves to feed, with the nape of the neck or other part of the head preferred.

"Don't wait for a doctor to remove a tick," is a warning medical authorities shout to all who are likely to come into contact with these death-carrying insects.

Prevention and safety require the observance of at least eight simple but important rules:

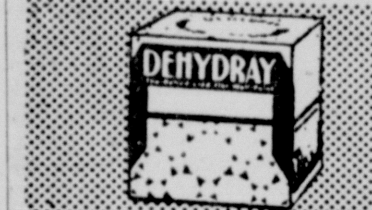

1. Keep grass and heavy weeds removed from areas near the home, playgrounds and other sites frequented by the family.
2. Examine dogs daily and remove the ticks before they gorge themselves with blood. Wear gloves and use forceps for this work. Drop captive ticks into a container of kerosene or burn them at once.Haste Is Urgent
3. Wear laced boots or other leg covering when walking through tick-infested areas, particularly through woods.

4. Examine the body carefully from head to foot after each possible exposure to ticks and especially should children be examined after they have been playing or walking where ticks may exist.

5. Place all-season emphasis on the important fact that a tick bite does not transmit spotted fever until the insect has remained attached for several hours in most cases.

6. When ticks are found on the body (duration of feeding can be

RUSSIA PROVES
DETERMINATION
TO AID SECURITYBy J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Russia, under direct appeal, has come through again with evidence that she is determined to help establish a world security organization of some value.

It was always inconceivable that the point at issue—Russia's demand for the right to prevent any given discussion from coming before the council—should defeat the aims of the Conference. Even the reasons for the demand were a mystery, like so many other Russian actions which have had the San Francisco delegates shaking their heads, not even pretending to understand. It has seemed almost as though Stalin was creating situations through which he could later indicate willingness to co-operate.

The ultimate, practical result is not so important. The Big Five still retain the individual right to veto real action in the case of threatened war. True, to have prevented the council from becoming a real forum might have permitted developments, in the dark, of situations which would befuddle world opinion when they suddenly burst into view.

Still Signs of Distrust

But the big thing is that Stalin has instructed his delegation to give in. There is no evidence of a trade. The Russians are told to show a conciliatory attitude in the interests of the success of the Conference.

That is the one thing needed. Once every worry over methods, every nationalistic desire, is subordinated to the one necessity of establishing security, then the goal will be in sight.

Russia is doing some things unilaterally, apparently with the main view of establishing her own security, which is alien to our way of thinking. It seems obvious that she does not yet trust the Western powers.

In this—if she can be accepted as free from aggressive motives, of which there is no evidence—she has a right to expect some sympathy, at least from America. It was only yesterday that suspicion of other powers was a motivating force here.

Every report from Germany indicates that on the lower level of contact between armies the Russian soldier and the American soldier appreciate each other, that as men to men there are no barriers between them. It is obvious, too, that the Russian army is thankful for

SUNDAY RECORD

RESCUE SERVICE HAS SAVED 2,300 YANKEE ARMEN

By RUSSELL BRINES
With Fifth Airforce, Luzon (AP)—In a little office at this base, quiet, serious men maintained an unusual war chart. It totals life, not death. Amid the vast figures of war, the current total is small—2,300. But it has been satisfaction to those who have watched it grow, since the first number was entered last September. For each of those numbers, there is joy in some American home; a solemn thankful toast drunk by sweating companions in some dusty airfield tent.

The chart details the 2,300 airmen who have been rescued from otherwise certain death on the lonely ocean stretches marking this aerial battlefield.

Go In With Bombers
It is the record of the Fifth Emergency Rescue Group, Fifth Air Force, the oldest and largest aerial rescue force in the southwest Pacific.

Throughout the thousands of miles flown by American bombers and fighters in their blockade against Japan's southwestern empire, the rescue group is at hand. The force has assigned to it flying boats, B-17 bombers, crash boats and transport planes. Submarines and destroyers are on call.

Some months ago, the first American raid on Balikpapan, Borneo, staged from Black Island, was the longest overwater assault of its type. Hugging the fringe of islands along the route, a screen of destroyers waited at a rendezvous point. Rescue planes went in with the bombers.

60 In One Load
Before departure, pilots were told where they could expect rescue if their planes were crippled too badly for the return to base.

The chosen islands were uninhabited and selected carefully from strong enemy bases scattered near them throughout this Japanese-held area.

The rescue group hovered over Ormoc Bay, Leyte, when American forces landed amid the thunder of Japanese guns. One flying boat succeeded in taking off with 60 men. A dozen is considered a full load.

The water expanses between Luzon and China are dotted with numerous tiny, uninhabited islands, nominally under Japanese control but too remote to be garrisoned. There are regions on the continent where a pilot can parachute with confidence he will reach friendly natives.

Report Safety Areas
A bespectacled student in the rescue group knows them all. He is Maj. Dennis Cooper, Mr. Clemens, Mich., formerly with the Detroit board of education. Geography is his passion. Now it pays dividends.

Maj. Cooper informs each pilot of the areas where he can expect safety, if his plane is shot full of holes. Friends will be waiting, somewhere at a desolate island too small for most maps.

Rescue meant preparation also before American occupation of the Philippines. The rescue group was instrumental in sending supplies to Filipino guerrillas. Officers directed the construction of emergency landing fields in the forested deep behind Japanese lines. When challenging gunfire still was heavy, they flew in transport planes to evacuate the wounded and sick.

The chart that records life, not death, is still growing.

Employers Liable For Contributions

Many Pennsylvania employers formerly not affected by the Unemployment Compensation law may now be liable for contributions in accordance with an amendment passed at the recent session of the Legislature. This new provision is retroactive to January 1, 1943.

Employers who hire one or more workers at any time are not subject to the contribution requirements of the Unemployment Compensation law. Under the amendment, practically the same type of employment is excluded; such as: domestic service, agriculture workers, etc. In many cases employers who are required to make payroll deductions for the Old Age and Survivors Insurance feature of the Social Security law must now report to the commonwealth under Unemployment Compensation.

Full information regarding this new requirement may be had by

Coal Price Rise Expected Soon

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Anthracite operators looked to the OPA today to hike hard coal prices to offset pay increases in their newly approved contract with John L. Lewis's Mine Workers.

The War Labor Board approved the contract late Wednesday, with minor qualifications affecting about 4,000 of the 72,000 Pennsylvania hard coal diggers.

The agreement provides for portal-to-portal pay for anthracite miners for the first time—allowing $1.32 per day for the underground trek between the foot of the shaft and their work.

The modifications imposed by the board were regarded as minor by Lewis and his union associates, who immediately wired the anthracite locals to continue voting favorably for the agreement in the referendum under way all this week. The tally had been started on the original agreement, signed May 19 by the negotiating committees.

Since a price increase is being sought by the operators, with Lewis's support, the agreement still is subject to approval by Economic Stabilizer William H. Davis. An average increase of 50 cents a ton for all sizes of anthracite may be sought from the OPA.

The WLB decided unanimously that the wage adjustments, giving 68,000 of the miners a pay boost of $1.374 a day, and slightly less increases to 4,000 others, came within the government's stabilization policy.

TRAVELS 6,000 MILES BY AIR

With the AAF Engineer Command in Italy, (By Mail)—Technician 4th Grade Glenn C. Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson E. Myers, East Berlin, has traveled over 6,000 miles in two years with an airfield-building aviation engineer battalion in the Mediterranean Theatre.

Arriving in Africa while the Tunisian campaign was at its height when airfields were desperately needed, the battalion, in a 1,500-mile convoy, rushed through the Atlas mountains to Tunisia. In addition to bringing with them their bulldozers and earth moving machines, many of them were drafted to drive over 250 truckloads of 500-pound bombs to airfields already in operation behind the front. One week after they arrived in Tunisia, the first fighter plane landed on a runway built by them.

After constructing airfields in support of the final push in Tunisia, they built bases to support the Sicilian invasion, completing them in record time. At one of these fields they were instrumental in saving three C-47s when those planes, lost at night on the return trip from dropping paratroopers in Sicily, made a landing on the runway they built up with jeep headlights as a quick-thinking emergency measure. LSTs carried them to Italy after that country had been partially occupied, and they have since constructed and maintained the bases used by the 12th and 15th Air Forces in pulverizing the Nazis.

Cooperatives In Pa. To Be Probed

Washington, June 8 (AP)—The inquiry into the activities of cooperative buying and selling organizations will be made by the general assembly's joint state government (research) commission.

Rep. Franklin H. Lichtenwalter, House Republican leader and secretary-treasurer of the commission, said the commission's executive committee decided to extend a proposed investigation of taxation and cooperative "to cover the entire problem."

"It is a big question and will become increasingly important," Lichtenwalter said. "In some western states cooperatives have grown very powerful and the commission felt that now was the time to look into the matter."

Weldon B. Herburn (R-Delaware), Senate majority leader, was named to head the inquiry which will not only investigate the operations of agricultural cooperative organizations but also those organized by consumer groups.

Fight Gypsy Moth With DDT Sprays

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 8 (AP)—The nocturnal feeding habits of gypsy moth caterpillars may prove their undoing.

The state agriculture department said today these "pillars crawl up tree trunks each night to feast on leaves, but always return to the ground before daybreak.

Taking advantage of this natural habit, state and federal entomologists are spraying tree trunks in infested areas with D.D.T., a war-developed insecticide that spells quick death for gypsy moths.

The tree-trunk treatment is being carried out in conjunction with extensive spraying of tree tops from airplanes.

The agriculture department reported today that it has covered nearly 3,000 acres of Pennsylvania's 660 infested square miles in Carbon, Luzerne and Lackawanna counties.

Officials said the gypsy moth has been confined to this area by state

Father Is "Sorry" He Shot His Son

Philadelphia, June 8 (AP)—"I'm awfully sorry I shot you," George Keller, 43, sobbed when he visited his son, George, 15, in a hospital yesterday after detectives said he signed a statement admitting he fatally shot his estranged wife, Anna, Tuesday night.

Detective Lt. John Hamilton said Keller in his statement said that he wounded his son when the boy ran to protect his mother and that he fired a .32 caliber pistol at his wife when she screamed, "Where is that knife?"

As Keller left the hospital where his son is reported to be improving, the boy called, "Good luck Dad. Take care of yourself."

RESCUE SERVICE HAS SAVED 2,300 YANKEE ARMEN

By RUSSELL BRINES
With Fifth Airforce, Luzon (AP)—In a little office at this base, quiet, serious men maintained an unusual war chart. It totals life, not death. Amid the vast figures of war, the current total is small—2,300. But it gives keen satisfaction to those who have watched it grow, since the first number was entered last September. For each of those numbers, there is joy in some American home; a solemn thankful toast drunk by sweating patriots in some dusty airfield tent.

The chart details the 2,300 airmen who have been rescued from otherwise certain death on the lonely ocean stretches marking this aerial battlefield.

Go In With Bombers
It is the record of the Fifth Emergency Rescue Group, Fifth Air Force, the oldest and largest aerial rescue force in the southwest Pacific. Throughout the thousands of miles flown by American bombers and fighters in their blockade against Japan's southwestern empire, the rescue group is at hand. The force has assigned to it flying boats, B-17 bombers, crash boats and transport planes. Submarines and destroyers are on call.

Some months ago, the first American raid on Balikpapan, Borneo, staged from Biak Island, was the longest overwater assault of its type. Hugging the fringe of islands along the route, a screen of destroyers waited at a rendezvous point. Rescue planes went in with the bombers.

60 In One Load
Before departure, pilots were told where they could expect rescue if their planes were crippled too badly for the return to base.

The chosen islands were uninhabited and selected carefully from strong enemy bases scattered near them throughout this Japanese-held area.

The rescue group hovered over Ormoc Bay, Leyte, when American forces landed amid the thunder of Japanese guns. One flying boat succeeded in taking off with 60 men. A dozen is considered a full load.

The water expanses between Luzon and China are dotted with numerous tiny, uninhabited islands, nominally under Japanese control but too remote to be garrisoned. "There are regions on the continent where a pilot can parachute with confidence he will reach friendly natives."

Report Safety Areas
A bespectacled student in the rescue group knows them all. He is Maj. Dennis Cooper, Mt. Clemens, Mich., formerly with the Detroit board of education. Geography is his passion. Now it pays dividends.

Maj. Cooper informs each pilot of the areas where he can expect safety, if his plane is shot full of holes. Friends will be waiting, somewhere at a flyspeck island too small for most maps.

Rescue meant preparation also before American occupation of the Philippines. The rescue group was instrumental in sending supply-filled submarines to Filipino guerrillas. Officers directed the construction of emergency landing fields in the forests deep behind Japanese lines. When challenging gunfire still was heavy, they flew in transport planes to evacuate the wounded and sick.

The chart that records life, not death, is still growing.

Employers Liable For Contributions

Many Pennsylvania employers formerly not affected by the Unemployment Compensation law may now be liable for contributions in accordance with an amendment passed at the recent session of the Legislature. This new provision is retroactive to January 1, 1945.

Employers who hire one or more workers at any time are now subject to the contribution requirements of the Unemployment Compensation law. Under the amendment practically the same type of employment is excluded; such as: domestic service, agriculture workers, etc. In most cases employers who are required to make payroll deductions for the Old Age and Survivors Insurance feature of the Social Security law must now report to the commonwealth under Unemployment Compensation.

Coal Price Rise Expected Soon

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Anthracite operators looked to the OPA today to hike hard coal prices to offset pay increases in their newly approved contract with John L. Lewis's Mine Workers.

The War Labor Board approved the contract late Wednesday, with minor qualifications affecting about 4,000 of the 72,000 Pennsylvania hard coal diggers.

The agreement provides for portal-to-portal pay for anthracite miners for the first time—allowing $1.32 per day for the underground trek between the foot of the shaft and their work.

The modifications imposed by the board were regarded as minor by Lewis and his union associates, who immediately wired the anthracite locals to continue voting favorably for the agreement in the referendum under way all this week. The tally had been started on the original agreement, signed May 19 by the negotiating committees.

Since a price increase is being sought by the operators, with Lewis's support, the agreement still is subject to approval by Economic Stabilizer William H. Davis. An average increase of 50 cents a ton for all sizes of anthracite may be sought from the OPA.

The WLB decided unanimously that the wage adjustments, giving 68,000 of the miners a pay boost of $1.37½ a day, and slightly less increases to 4,000 others, came within the government's stabilization policy.

TRAVELS 6,000 MILES BY AIR

With the AAF Engineer Command in Italy. (By Mail)—Technician 4th Grade Glenn C. Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson E. Myers, East Berlin, has traveled over 6,000 miles in two years with an airfield-building aviation engineer battalion in the Mediterranean Theatre.

Arriving in Africa while the Tunisian campaign was at its height when airfields were desperately needed, the battalion, in a 1,500-mile convoy, rushed through the Atlas mountains to Tunisia. In addition to bringing with them their bulldozers and earth moving machines, many of them were drafted to drive over 250 truckloads of 500-pound bombs to airfields already in operation behind the front. One week after they arrived in Tunisia, the first fighter plane landed on a runway built by them.

After constructing airfields in support of the final push in Tunisia, they built bases to support the Sicilian invasion, completing them in record time. At one of these fields they were instrumental in saving three C-47's when those planes, lost at night on the return trip from dropping paratroopers in Sicily, made a landing on the runway they lit up with jeep headlights as a quick-thinking emergency measure.

LST's carried them to Italy after that country had been partially occupied, and they have since constructed and maintained the bases used by the 12th and 15th Air Forces in pulverizing the Nazis.

Cooperatives In Pa. To Be Probed

Washington, June 8 (AP)—The inquiry into the activities of cooperative buying and selling organizations will be made by the general assembly's joint, state government (research) commission.

Rep. Franklin H. Lichtenwalter, House Republican leader and secretary-treasurer of the commission, said the commission's executive committee decided to extend a proposed investigation of taxation and cooperatives "to cover the entire problem."

"It is a big question and will become increasingly important," Lichtenwalter said. "In some western states cooperatives have grown very powerful and the commission felt that now was the time to look into the matter."

Weldon B. Heyburn (R-Delaware), Senate majority leader, was named to head the inquiry which will not only investigate the operations of agricultural cooperative organizations but also those organized by consumer groups.

Fight Gypsy Moth With DDT Sprays

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 8 (AP)—The nocturnal feeding habits of gypsy moth caterpillars may prove their undoing.

The state agriculture department said today these "pillars" crawl up tree trunks each night to feast on leaves, but always return to the ground before daybreak.

Taking advantage of this natural habit, state and federal entomologists are spraying tree trunks in infested areas with D.D.T., a war-developed insecticide that spells quick death for gypsy moths.

The tree-trunk treatment is being carried out in conjunction with extensive spraying of tree tops from airplanes.

The agriculture department reported nearly 3,000 acres of Pennsylvania's 600 infested square miles in Carbon, Luzerne and Lackawanna counties.

Officials said the gypsy moth has been confined to this area by state

HOW DEEP WILL YOU DIG in the MIGHTY 7th WAR LOAN?

THIS YEAR, the 7th War Loan has to raise just about as much as was raised by two loans up to this time last year.

You can see in the picture above one reason why... why that boy and millions like him must continue to have every advantage money will buy to do the job and get home again.

War bond money buys food, clothing, weapons and ammunition.

War bond money buys medical supplies and convalescent care. War bond money helps bring him home faster.

That much for your conscience...

This much for your pocket: $4 for every $3 invested, at maturity; guaranteed security—the same security that backs the dollars you put into the bonds; the world's best investment.

Just Folks

MAY 8, 1945

Oh, precious freedom bought with pain
And blood and sweat and blinding tears,
World-wide the church bells ring again
And peace is promised for the years.The tyrant hordes the field have fled;
Down come the banners they unfurled;
The fiend who shamed his race is dead,
And dead his dream to rule the world!One more task to do, and then
To cleaner duties men can turn,
To God and brotherhood again
And home where hearth fires blaze and burn.

Today's Talk

LOSSES AND LESSONS

It would be a sad thing for anyone to win all the time. No one has, however, which is a most fortunate and encouraging thing to ponder upon.

Every loss has its lesson, and that lesson becomes a part of our overall experience. In this tragic war, mistakes have been made by the best and most experienced of Generals—but each one has had its lesson well learned.

Cecil Rhodes once was accused of making mistakes. He answered that he probably made as many mistakes, or more, than anyone else in the world—but that he paid no attention to them. But, of course, he did, else he would not have achieved all that he did, for he was a relentless worker—a man of big ideas and vast visions. But he used his mistakes!

All our losses must be placed against our gains. That is the method of the shrewd business man, and of us all, no matter what our vocation in life. If we would learn, grow, and achieve the things that are worth while.

Frank Woolworth, who founded the great dime stores that bear his name, made a miserable failure out of his first efforts, but he kept the idea alive, kept feeding it new ideas, and giving it new nourishment, until he gained a world-wide fame, crystallizing an idea that became so pronounced a success that immediately there arose imitators and followers—as is always the case, as we all know.

With every loss and setback is always created a new responsibility, and it is responsibility that builds the muscles to character, and which keeps the valves of the heart open for a full and healthy flow of life-giving blood. Every loss houses its own lesson within itself. But you often have to break into that house, capture the lesson—and leave the loss behind—where it belongs!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "The Important Objective."

FRENCH CALL
BIG 5 MEET

Paris, June 3 (AP)—Authoritative quarters said Thursday the French government had formally invited other members of the big five to participate in a conference on the middle east.

French embassies in Washington, London, Moscow and Chungking were instructed to present the invitation, along with a short statement of France's reasons for calling the conference. A responsible source said no note was delivered in connection with the invitations.

This will require formal answers from the other countries. Prime Minister Churchill, at odds with Gen. De Gaulle over the situation in Syria, told Commons Tuesday that a five-power conference would "cause a great deal of delay and require very careful consideration on many grounds." He sought immediate mediation by the United States, Britain and France.

RUSS DECISION
PUTS PARLEY
'OVER THE HILL'By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(Associated Press Diplomatic News Editor)

San Francisco, June 3 (AP)—Small nation acceptance of a Big-Five veto voting formula for a world security council today appeared certain. A successful end of the United Nations conference is in sight.

Russia's dramatic acceptance of a statement that the big-power veto could not be used to block discussion of any case presented to the council broke a week-old deadlock late yesterday and put the conference over the hill.

Ten days to two weeks more of committee work and speech-making remain to get the United Nations charter in final shape for signing, but no more major issues are on the horizon.

Acted for Unanimity

It took the combined efforts of Premier Stalin, Harry Hopkins, who was then in Moscow, and Secretary of State Stettinius, who acted with President Truman's approval, to end the deadlock. Hopkins, on instructions from Stettinius, asked Stalin to reconsider Soviet insistence that any of the Big Five could veto even discussion in the peace-enforcement council of an international dispute. The other four major powers did not want a single veto vote to block roundtable talk.

Stalin reversed the Soviet position, acting, according to his spokesmen here, in the interest of unanimity and to speed the conference to success.

Last night drafting experts of the Big-Five powers gave final shape to a statement of just how the veto voting formula would work out in the security council. This statement is designed to answer 22 questions submitted by small nations more than two weeks ago.

Expect Acceptance

It goes before a conference committee today and Senator Connally (D-Tex.), American member of the committee, said he would urge immediate action, so that this and other conference business which has been delayed by the veto fight can speedily be cleared away.

Connally predicted that the small nations would accept the veto voting arrangement as defined in the statement although, he said, "there may be some objections."

Conference authorities generally agreed that these objections would be raised by delegates who, like Foreign Minister Herbert Evatt of Australia, strongly oppose the veto in principle. But the widespread feeling was that the prolonged struggle of the big powers to get together had taken most of the wind out of the opposition's sails.

The statement describes in detail how the Big Five would have to concur in any effective decision to enforce peace and how they would also have to concur on peaceful efforts to settle disputes, except that any nation party to a dispute would not vote at all on peaceful settlement.

Procedural questions would be decided by a majority of any seven members of the 11-nation council, so that, in an extreme case, the council could make an affirmative decision if only one of the big powers voted with the six small nations.

MAKES SPEECH AND DIES

Pittsburgh, June 3 (AP)—Louis Schwartz, 57, vice president and treasurer of the Oakland Real Estate company, died last night in Montefiore hospital after suffering a heart attack at a political meeting. Schwartz had just delivered a speech in behalf of L. Col. Harmer D. Denny, Jr., candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination when he was stricken.

Erie, Pa., June 3 (AP)—Raw pork which he ate four days ago caused the death yesterday of Harry Emerson, 32, Coroner W. W. Wood reported. Wood said Emerson became ill several hours after eating the pork.

Dog Ticks And Spotted Fever

Rocky Mountain spotted fever is now common throughout the East, so common, in fact, that every person, urban as well as rural, should know and practice preventive measures to protect themselves from this deadly disease. Perhaps all fatalities from spotted fever are never accurately known, for numerous deaths from it may be easily attributed to typhus or meningitis.

The tick's life story is necessary to know as well as interesting. The female tick lays an enormous number of eggs in woods, weed-infested nooks and even in dense grass. These hatch into tiny seed ticks that pass through the nymph stages and soon into egg-laying adults. At no stage of its development is the tick able to support itself. It lives an entire life cycle of parasitism. In other words, it feeds only on the blood of animals, principally mice, rats, ground squirrels and other rodents, but even on horses and dogs. If no other host is at hand, the tick will fasten itself on a human being to feed.

For example, a tick feeds on a diseased animal and later attaches itself to a human being, and thereby it carries the dead fever virus. Authorities believe no more than one out of every one hundred ticks carries spotted fever, yet no one can distinguish the carrier from the harmless tick. Therefore, every tick must be feared and shunned. There is no safe ground to risk where human beings and ticks exist together.

Don't Wait For Doctor
Ticks usually migrate upward on the person they reach and attach themselves to feed, with the nape of the neck or other part of the head preferred.

"Don't wait for a doctor to remove a tick," is a warning medical authorities shout to all who are likely to come into contact with these death-carrying insects. Prevention and safety require the observance of at least eight simple but important rules:

1. Keep grass and heavy weeds removed from areas near the home, playgrounds and other sites frequented by the family.
2. Examine dogs daily and remove the ticks before they gorge themselves with blood. Wear gloves and use forceps for this work. Drop captured ticks into a container of kerosene or burn them at once.Haste Is Urgent
3. Wear laced boots or other leg covering when walking through tick-infested areas, particularly through woods.

4. Examine the body carefully from head to foot after each possible exposure to ticks and especially should children be examined after they have been playing or walking where ticks may exist.

5. Place all-season emphasis on the important fact that a tick bite does not transmit spotted fever until the insect has remained attached for several hours in most cases.
6. When ticks are found on the body (duration of feeding can be judged by size and blood content), remove them at once and apply iodine to the wound, using a toothpick or similar stick to force the disinfectant into the wound.

7. Tick-infested clothing should be de-ticked by placing the garments in a container with a tightly fitting lid and setting an open vessel of carbon disulphide on top of the garments. Put the lid in place and continue the fumigation several hours.

8. In all cases of illness or unknown symptoms after exposure to ticks, call a physician. Here is a case where haste is urgent—it may save the victim's life.

RUSSIA PROVES
DETERMINATION
TO AID SECURITYBy J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Russia, under direct appeal, has come through again with evidence that she is determined to help establish a world security organization of some value.

It was always inconceivable that the point at issue—Russia's demand for the right to prevent any given discussion from coming before the council—should defeat the aims of the Conference. Even the reasons for the demand were a mystery, like so many other Russian actions which have had the San Francisco delegates shaking their heads, not even pretending to understand. It has seemed almost as though Stalin was creating situations through which he could later indicate willingness to co-operate.

The ultimate, practical result is not so important. The Big Five still retain the individual right to veto real action in the case of threatened war. True, to have prevented the council from becoming a real forum might have permitted developments, in the dark of situations which would befuddle world opinion when they suddenly burst into view.

Still Signs of Distrust
But the big thing is that Stalin has instructed his delegation to give in. There is no evidence of a trade. The Russians are told to show a conciliatory attitude in the interests of the success of the Conference.

That is the one thing needed. Once every worry over methods, every nationalistic desire, is subordinated to the one necessity of establishing security, then the goal will be in sight.

Russia is doing some things unilaterally, apparently with the main view of establishing her own security, which is alien to our way of thinking. It seems obvious that she does not yet trust the Western powers.

In this—if she can be accepted as free from aggressive motives, of which there is no evidence—she has a right to expect some sympathy, at least from America. It was only yesterday that suspicion of other powers was a motivating force here.

Every report from Germany indicates that on the lower level of contact between armies the Russian soldier and the American soldier appreciate each other, that as men there are no barriers between them. It is obvious, too, that the Russian army is thankful for American military aid to a degree which is everything that could be desired.

The Russian soldier has seen some new horizons in western Europe, and like his American counterpart, is going to play an important role in the future of his country.

It may well turn out that these things will prove more lastingly important than the hesitations and fearful erection of defenses of a country which is just emerging into a new place in world affairs. At least there are new grounds for hope.

...when you welcome the Victory Volunteer

... As you read this, your armed forces are fighting their way toward the great victory. Every American must do his part—that means every American must back this greatest of all War Bond drives—the mighty, urgent Seventh!

TWO BIG DRIVES IN ONE!

... Last year, by this time, you were asked to subscribe in two drives. Since this is the first drive in 1945, we must be ready to back it up to the hilt. That means you must substantially increase your bond buying during the Seventh.

... Let's get ready now to welcome the volunteer salesmen with a generous heart and an open pocketbook. Thousands of men, women, boys and girls are giving their time to take your bond subscriptions. They know how vital this drive is—show them you know, too, by buying bigger, extra bonds.

... If you have any income, from any source—whether from work, land or capital—you have a personal quota in this drive. Find out what it is—and be ready to do your share when your victory volunteer calls.

... The need is greater than ever before. As we push closer to victory, the cost of waging war gets higher and higher. More guns, more ships, more planes are needed every day. That's why we must put every ounce of effort behind the Seventh War Loan. And remember, too, war bonds are still the world's safest investment—they represent savings for your future—victory for your country.

Chapter 20
Babs was looking over Tommy's
shoulder and he heard her exclamation of surprise. "Oh, there's Dr.
Warner!"

It seemed to them like a scene
on the cinema screen as they watched Kay's face turn in glad surprise to welcome the doctor.
They saw her blue eyes glow as
if a thousand candles had been lighted behind them. They saw her lips curve in a happy smile.

Jimmy was the first to look away.
Then suddenly his eyes gleamed
with his old reckless expression.
His voice held a forced gaiety. "I'm going to find a drink. After all, it's Christmas Eve!"

Babs felt her heart sink. "Please,
Jimmy, don't," she pleaded. Then her eyes clung to his, and she added softly, "I like you so much without it."

"You like me without it? Well, that's something. You can see that Kay doesn't care for me, with or without. Tell me," he murmured,
"what do you see when you look at me like that? Now be honest,
Babs."

"I see the ruin of a fine body
and what could be a brilliant mind."
She paused, and then added with reluctance, "And a son whose father might be proud of him!"

"You are priceless, Babs. I hope Santa Claus is good to you."

"Same to you."

Jimmy glanced across the room.
"Kay looks as if Santa Claus has already been to see her!" he stated.

"And all I really want is a punch
at Warner's handsome nose!" Babs decided to take matters into her own hands. "He has asked her to have dinner with him tomorrow."

Which was not exactly true, but none the less adequate if it worked,
she decided.

"Well, she promised me first."

Babs plunged boldly. "Give them
their day, Jimmy. And you take
me. Then everyone will be fixed.
That is all I want from Santa Claus."

"Are you trying to help Kay out?"
he asked suspiciously.

"No," she said with audacity.
"I'm trying to help myself. I'm overcome at the idea of a lonely
day."

Jimmy's eyes moved across the room to Kay and Dr. Warner. They were dancing with Kay's illumined face uplifted to his. Two people in love if he'd ever seen it! He felt a little lonely as he looked down
at Babs.

"Sweet kid," he whispered. "How do you get around that? But you win; provided you let me get one punch at him."

"No," she laughed. "You might get punched back and I'm thinking of tomorrow."

She was thinking: Oh, Jimmy,
Jimmy! I love you. I believe in
you. And who knows what may happen on Christmas Day?

Then he spoke into her dreams.
"I guess it will always be Kay for me!" he said. But he smiled down at her, and mused. "Yet will it be?
And why?"

Kay dressed in happy excitement

the next day. She was wearing a new dress for this special occasion
and she sang softly as she moved about her room.

Kay sniffed the fresh woody odor of the violets. There was a small velvet case in her dresser drawer from a famous jeweler's, it held a pair of diamond clips accompanied by Jimmy's card. She'd return it tomorrow. It wouldn't be fair to him to keep it—when she intended marrying another man!

That is if he asked her. But she'd tell Jimmy first of all.

Rex Warner came in, tall and
handsome in his heavy overcoat.
He looked down at Kay with a smile
in his grave, dark eyes.

She was thinking as he held out her hand: He loves me, too. I can feel it in that inexplicable something that reaches out to me. Perhaps he'll tell me so today! Perhaps, on this Christmas Eve, he'll say, "I love you, Kay. Will you marry me?" And I'll have that to remember on the Christmas Days we'll spend together.

"You look as happy as a picture on a Christmas card," he said, following her into the hall.

"Oh, I am," she answered eagerly. "The one where Santa Claus has just been and left all his gifts."

"Gifts?"

"Yes, I have so many."

She turned to a table laden with gaily-wrapped packages. "I'm taking most of these to the children's clinic," she told him. "Hold out your arms and I'll give 'em up."

Dr. Warner smiled as Kay placed the packages in his arms. Then she gathered up the others and they went out to his car, laughing with the joy of being together.

It was on the drive home when Kay noticed that Rex had not spoken a word for some time. She looked at his grim face and felt a moment of fear. He looked as if the end of the world had come.

In the hall she drew off her hat and coat, turning to him, she said in a tremulous voice. "Have your coat here, maybe Lisa will give it some of her private stock of peach wine." And she moved on into the living room.

Then, though Kay was to live over the next few minutes thousands of times during the remainder of her life, she was never to remember exactly how it happened that she was in Rex's arms.

He had followed her into the living room, and when she turned to look up at him, she

Sub Skipper

fire and was burning furiously as a Japanese destroyer raced up. Skipper Smith took his boat into a dive and the first depth charging of an American submarine in the Pacific began. Charges roared out, clanging like a giant's hammer against the sides of the Swordfish as other vessels joined the search.

Benched by Patrol

"It was an uncomfortable feeling to be lying on the bottom with vessels on the hunt for us," Smith noted.

Next on the roster of enemy action was a batch of aerial bombs rained down by a snooping Japanese patrol plane. It was a bad moment for the Swordfish. Each time she was brought to the surface the plane hovered overhead.

Finally Smith reasoned that his boat must be leaking oil and leaving a betraying surface slick. That night, not daring to show a light in the search, crewmen located a tiny leak on the deck. They found it by smell, crawling along in the murky tropic darkness, and repaired it not far from where enemy patrol ships swarmed in a vain hunt for the submarine.

Finally, with a substantial number of ships sunk, and a vast fund of knowledge vital to future submarine operations, Skipper Smith brought the Swordfish into harbor.

The first step in a long journey which has made the Pacific an American lake had been completed.

Chapter 20

Babs was looking over Tommy's
shoulder and he heard her exclamation of surprise, "Oh, there's Dr.
Warner!"

It seemed to them like a scene
on the cinema screen as they watched Kay's face turn in glad
surprise to welcome the doctor.
They saw her blue eyes glow as if by a thousand candles had been lighted behind them. They saw her lips curve in a happy smile.

Jimmy was the first to look away.
Then suddenly his eyes gleamed
with his old reckless expression.
His voice held a forced gaiety. "I'm
Christmas Eve!"

Babs felt her heart sink. "Please, Jimmy, don't," she pleaded. Then her eyes clung to his, and she added softly, "I like you so much without
it."

"You like me without it? Well,
that's something. You can see that Kay doesn't care for me, with or without! Tell me," he murmured,
"what do you see when you look at me like that? Now be honest,
Babs."

"I see the ruin of a fine body
and what could be a brilliant mind."
She paused, and then added with reluctance, "And a son whose
father might be proud of him!"

"You are priceless, Babs. I hope
Santa Claus is good to you."
"Same to you."

Jimmy glanced across the room.
"Kay looks as if Santa Claus has already been to see her!" he stated.
"And all I really want is a punch
at Warner's handsome nose!" Babs
decided to take matters into her own hands. "He has asked her to
have dinner with him tomorrow."
Which was not exactly true, but none the less adequate if it worked,
she decided.

"Well, she promised me first."
Babs plunged boldly. "Give them
their day, Jimmy. And you take
me. Then everyone will be fixed.
That is all I want from Santa Claus."

"Are you trying to help Kay out?"
he asked suspiciously.

"No," she said with audacity.
"I'm trying to help myself. I'm overcome at the idea of a lonely
day."

Jimmy's eyes moved across the room to Kay and Dr. Warner. They were dancing, with Kay's illumined
face uplifted to his. Two people in love if he'd ever seen it! He felt a little lonely as he looked down
at Babs.

"Sweet kid," he whispered. "How do you get around me? But you win; provided you let me get one
punch at him."

"No," she laughed. "You might get punched back and I'm thinking of tomorrow."

She was thinking: Oh, Jimmy,
Jimmy! I love you. I believe in
you. And who knows what may happen on Christmas Day?

Then he spoke into her dreams.
"I guess it will always be Kay for me!" he said. But he smiled down
at her, and mused, "Yet will it be?
And why?"

Kay dressed in happy excitement

the next day. She was wearing a
new dress for this special occasion
and she sang softly as she moved
about her room.

Kay sniffed the fresh woody odor of the violets. There was a small velvet case in her dresser drawer from a famous jeweler's, it held a pair of diamond clips accompanied by Jimmy's card. She'd return it tomorrow. It wouldn't be fair to him to keep it—when she
intended marrying another man!
That is, if he asked her. But she'd
tell Jimmy first of all.

Rex Warner came in, tall and
handsome in his heavy overcoat.
He looked down at Kay with a smile
in his grave, dark eyes.

She was thinking as he held out
her hand: He loves me, too. I can feel it in that inexplicable something that reaches out to me. Per-

...when you welcome the Victory Volunteer

... As you read this, your armed forces are fighting their way toward the great victory. Every American must do his part—that means every American must back this greatest of all War Bond drives—the mighty, urgent Seventh!

TWO BIG DRIVES IN ONE!

... Last year, by this time, you were asked to subscribe in two drives. Since this is the first drive in 1945, we must be ready to back it up to the hilt. That means you must substantially increase your bond buying during the Seventh.

... Let's get ready now to welcome the volunteer salesmen with a generous heart and an open pocketbook. Thousands of men, women, boys and girls are giving their time to take your bond subscriptions. They know how vital this drive is—show them you know, too, by buying bigger, extra bonds.

... If you have any income, from any source—whether from work, land or capital—you have a personal quota in this drive. Find out what it is—and be ready to do your share when your victory volunteer calls.

... The need is greater than ever before. As we push closer to victory, the cost of waging war gets higher and higher. More guns, more ships, more planes are needed every day. That's why we must put every ounce of effort behind the Seventh War Loan. And remember, too, war bonds are still the world's safest investment—they represent savings for your future—victory for your country.

Chapter 20
Babs was looking over Tommy's
shoulder and he heard her exclamation of surprise. "Oh, there's Dr.
Warner!"

It seemed to them like a scene
on the cinema screen as they watched Kay's face turn in glad surprise to welcome the doctor.
They saw her blue eyes glow as
if a thousand candles had been lighted behind them. They saw her lips curve in a happy smile.

Jimmy was the first to look away.
Then suddenly his eyes gleamed
with his old reckless expression.
His voice held a forced gaiety. "I'm going to find a drink. After all, it's Christmas Eve!"

Babs felt her heart sink. "Please,
Jimmy, don't," she pleaded. Then
her eyes clung to his, and she added softly, "I like you so much without
it."

"You like me without it? Well,
that's something. You can see that Kay doesn't care for me, with or without. Tell me," he murmured.
"What do you see when you look at me like that? Not a bit honest,
Babs."

"I see the ruin of a fine body
and what could be a brilliant mind."
She paused, and then added with reluctance, "And a son whose
father might be proud of him!"

"You are priceless, Babs. I hope
Santa Claus is good to you."

"Same to you."
Jimmy glanced across the room.
"Kay looks as if Santa Claus has already been to see her!" he stated.
"And all I really want is a punch
at Warner's handsome nose!" Babs
decided to take matters into her own hands. "He has asked her to
have dinner with him tomorrow."

Which was not exactly true, but none the less adequate if it worked,
she decided.

"Well, she promised me first."
Babs plunged boldly. "Give them
their day, Jimmy. And you take
me. Then everyone will be fixed."

That is all I want from Santa Claus."

"Are you trying to help Kay out?"
he asked suspiciously.

"No," she said with audacity.
"I'm trying to help myself. I'm overcome at the idea of a lonely
day."

Jimmy's eyes moved across the room to Kay and Dr. Warner. They were dancing with Kay's illumined face upturned to his. Two people in love it had ever seen! He felt a little lonely as he looked down
at Babs.

"Sweet kid," he murmured. "How do you get around that? But you want, provided you let me get one punch at him."

"No," she laughed. "You might get punched back and I'm thinking of tomorrow."

She was thinking: Oh, Jimmy,
Jimmy! I love you. I believe in
you. And who knows what may happen on Christmas Day?

Then he spoke into her dreams.
"I guess it will always be Kay for me!" he said. But he smiled down
at her, and mused. "Yet will it be?
And why?"

Kay dressed in happy excitement.

fire and was burning furiously as a Japanese destroyer raced up. Skipper Smith took his boat into a dive and the first depth charging of an American submarine in the Pacific began. Charges roared out, clanging like a giant's hammer against the sides of the Swordfish as other vessels joined the search.

Bombed by Patrol "It was an uncomfortable feeling to be lying on the bottom with ves- sels on the hunt for us," Smith noted.

Next on the roster of enemy ac- tion was a batch of aerial bombs rained down by a snooping Japa- nese patrol plane. It was a bad moment for the Swordfish. Each time she was brought to the sur- face the plane hovered overhead. Finally Smith reasoned that his boat must be leaking oil and leav- ing a betraying surface slick. That night, not daring to show a light in the search, crewmen located a tiny leak on the deck. They found it by smell, crawling along in the murky tropic darkness, and repaired it not far from where enemy patrol ships swarmed in a vain hunt for the submarine.

Finally, with a substantial num- ber of ships sunk, and a vast fund of knowledge vital to future sub- marine operations, Skipper Smith brought the Swordfish into harbor.

The first step in a long journey which has made the Pacific an American lake had been completed.

Kay dressed in happy excitement

haps he'll tell me so today! Per- haps, on this Christmas Day he'll say, "I love you, Kay. Will you marry me?" And I'll have that to remember all the Christmas Days we'll spend together.

"You look as happy as a picture on a Christmas card," he said, fol- lowing her into the hall.

"Oh, I am," she answered eagerly, "the one where Santa Claus has just been and left all his gifts."

"Gifts?"

"Yes, I have so many."

She turned to a table laden with gaily-wrapped packages. "I'm taking most of these to the children's clinic," she told him. "Hold out your arms and I'll pile 'em up." Dr. Warner smiled as Kay placed the packages in his arms. Then she gathered up the others and they went out to his car, laughing with the joy of being together.

It was on the happy home when Kay noticed that Rex had not spoken a word for some time. She looked at his grim face and felt a moment of fear. He looked as if the end of the world had come.

In the hall she drew off her hat and coat. Turning to him, she said in a tremulous voice, "Hurry your coat here. Maybe Lisa will serve us some of her private stock of peach wine." And she moved on into the living room.

Then, though Kay was to live over the next few minutes thou- sands of times during the remain- der of her life, she was never to remember exactly how it happened that she was in Rex's arms.

He had followed her into the living room, and when she turned to look up at him, she saw his face was white. They looked at each other for a long moment and then he reached out and drew her into his arms. Holding her close he mur- mured, "Kay—Kay—my darling," again and again.

YOU'LL BE TRAVELING THE TOKYO ROAD TOO...

...when you welcome the Victory Volunteer

... As you read this, your armed forces are fighting their way toward the great victory. Every American must do his part—that means every American must back this greatest of all War Bond drives—the mighty, urgent Seventh!

TWO BIG DRIVES IN ONE!

... Last year, by this time, you were asked to subscribe in two drives. Since this is the first drive in 1945, we must be ready to back it up to the hilt. That means you must substantially increase your bond buying during the Seventh. ... Let's get ready now to welcome the volunteer salesman with a generous heart and an open pocketbook. Thousands of men, women, boys and girls are giving their time to take your bond subscriptions. They know how vital this drive is—show them you know, too, by buying bigger, extra bonds.

... If you have any income, from any source—whether from work, land or capital—you have a personal quota in this drive. Find out what it is—and be ready to do your share when your victory volunteer calls.

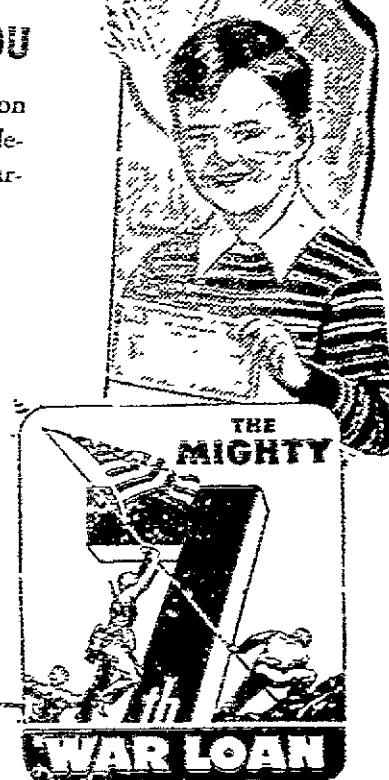

... The need is greater than ever before. As we push closer to victory, the cost of waging war gets higher and higher. More guns, more ships, more planes are needed every day. That's why we must put every ounce of effort behind the Seventh War Loan. And remember, too, war bonds are still the world's safest investment—they represent savings for your future—victory for your country.

William A. Beales Dies Of Wounds In Pacific Theatre

Seaman First Class William A. Beales, 33, a member of the Seabees for two years and veteran of 18 months' overseas service, has died of battle wounds received in action in the Pacific. Navy Department telegrams to the family disclosed Wednesday morning.

No date was given and no details of the nature of the wounds or the manner in which they were received. On Tuesday his mother, Mrs. E. Mae Beales, and his wife, Mrs. Mary (Dunkle) Beales, both of West Middle street, received letters written by "Bill" on May 29.

The family has never known where "Bill" was since he left Hawaii several months ago. They believed he was on Iwo Jima for a time but they do not know whether that is where he received his fatal wounds.

Inducted June 4, 1943

"Bill" Beales was inducted into the armed forces at Harrisburg on June 4, 1943, and entered active service a week later. He was assigned to the Construction Battalion in the Navy and was sent to Camp Peary, Virginia, where he trained until December, 1943, when he went to the Pacific. He was stationed in Hawaii until several months ago.

From letters to members of his family and friends here they believe he had been helping with the construction of airfields on Iwo Jima.

"Bill" was for a number of years an active member of the Gettysburg Fire company and now is the second member of that organization to make the supreme sacrifice in World War II. The first was Corp. Horace M. Bushman, who was killed in Normandy last June.

He also was a member of the Presbyterian church here and is the fourth "gold star" name on the church Honor Roll.

A son of the late C. William Beales, former state senator and representative in Congress for this district, and Mrs. Beales, "Bill" was graduated from Gettysburg high school in 1923. During this senior year he was student manager of the football team.

Surviving besides his wife and mother are an older brother, Charles A. Beales, North Stratton street; and four sisters: Mrs. Frank A. Hetzel, Harrisburg; Mrs. Elwood Myers, Harrisburg; Mrs. Harold Wentz, Baltimore street; and Mrs. Joseph Patterson, Jr., Elkton City, Md.

In a letter received by a friend Tuesday afternoon S. I. C. Beales stated: "V-E day out here was just another day. Work went on as usual as we want to get this one over too. The ending of the European war certainly will hasten the end of this one out here. . . . We are now living in a permanent camp—much better living conditions and our meals are better. We get fresh meat about twice a week but I would like to have it more often and am often glad that I am a light eater. . . . There probably will be quite a few of the fellows coming home from the European side and a lot of them certainly are deserving of it but I still envy those that get back now. My 18 months overseas seem a lot longer than that and to those in the Army that have been over for three years or more it must seem ages and ages. But this war cannot last forever. That is one consolation we all have."

Frederick Harold Kanter, Jr., has been transferred to Bloomsburg, Pa., for induction and Harold Grant Webb to Gary, Indiana.

Clarence Albert Reynolds, Mechanicsburg; Glenn Martin Rider, Ardenville; Eugene Monroe Cline, Greensboro; Lawrence Richard Rice, Biglerville; Bill Howe Warren, Biglerville; Irvin Samuel Eicholtz, Ardenville; Richard Carol Wetzel, Fairfield; George Charles Currens, Jr., Orrtanna; Francis L. Graft, Gettysburg; Cold Cecil Vines, Biglerville.

Allen A. Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric F. Larson, Buffalo street, has received his commission as second lieutenant after completing a course in O.C.S. in France.

Lt. Larson, who is now located in Munster, Germany, has been overseas for two years.

MADE 2ND LIEUTENANT
Sgt. John B. Stevens, 21, son of Mrs. John F. Stevens, 524 Carlisle street, extended, has been promoted to 2nd lieutenant. His mother has been advised. Lt. Stevens is serving with the 28th Division in Germany. He has been in service since February, 1942, and has been overseas almost two years. He attended Gettysburg high school before entering service.

PVT. CONOVER IS INJURED APR. 28 IN CEBU ACTION

Pvt. Irvin S. Conover, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Conover, Gettysburg, Pa., was seriously wounded April 28 while fighting on Cebu in the Philippines, according to a War Department telegram recently received by his parents. A card from the War Department stated he was making normal progress in a hospital.

The Purple Heart has been awarded to Pvt. Conover. The wounded soldier attended Gettysburg high school and was inducted at New Cumberland on August 11, 1944. He received his basic training with the infantry at Camp Wheeler, Ga. Later he was sent to Ft. Meade, Md., and from there to Ft. Ord, Calif. He went overseas last January.

Prior to his induction he was employed by H. D. Crouse, Gettysburg, Pa.

A brother, Pfc. Guy L. Conover, 19, has been awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious achievement in battle on April 13 as a member of Co. I, 346 Infantry Regiment, 89th Infantry Division.

The citation reads: "During the attack on Weissen, Germany, it was necessary to cross a demolished bridge over the Sable river under direct enemy observation and fire. Advancing boldly, Pfc. Conover, with his platoon leader, successfully crossed the obstacle and assisted in directing the crossing of his platoon. During the ensuing action, Pfc. Conover displayed outstanding courage and initiative in the performance of his duties as platoon messenger."

Guy was inducted May, 1944, and received training at Ft. McClellan, Ala., and Ft. Jackson, S. C. Later he was sent to Ft. Meade, Md., and then went overseas to Germany last February.

R. E. MUSSELMAN IS LIBERATED

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Musselman, Fairfield, R. I., have received word from the War Department that their son, Pfc. Ralph E. Musselman, 26, has returned to military control after being a prisoner of the Germans.

Pfc. Musselman took part in the invasion of Europe on June 6, 1944, and served with an infantry outfit of General Hodges' First Army. He was taken prisoner on November 8. The liberated soldier was inducted April 20, 1941, and trained at Indiantown Gap; Camp Croft, S. C.; Camp Livingston, La.; Camp Pickens, Va., and Camp Johnston, Fla. He has been overseas about 19 months.

A brother, Cpl. Clyde Musselman, 23, was wounded while fighting in Italy.

Lt. John M. Hock Arrives At Home

First Lt. John M. Hock, Jr., who was liberated from a German prisoner of war camp on April 29, arrived Friday night and will spend two months with his wife, Mrs. Irene McLaughlin Hock, Gettysburg, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hock, Chambersburg. He will report to Miami Beach, Fla., on August 1.

Lieutenant Hock was stationed in England, and was a navigator on a Flying Fortress when he was captured by the Germans on April 13, 1944, after his plane had been downed. He was at Meosburg camp at the time of his liberation.

Only the Red Cross packages, shared by all the Allied prisoners of the Nazis excepting the Russians, kept Pfc. Newell E. Carey, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carey, Gettysburg, R. I., and his companions from becoming the living skeletons that were typical of the Russian inmates of the Nazi prison at Meosburg.

A prisoner of the Germans for seven months and 17 days, Pfc. Carey was liberated by Patton's

Third Army on April 29. He reached his home near Seven Stars Monday evening and recounted his adventures to a reporter for The Gettysburg Times Tuesday afternoon.

Carey, who with his two brothers can account for a total of 13 years of army service for the Carey family, lost 20 pounds or more during his days in the Nazi prisons where the food became steadily worse and the number of men dropped from three to two and then to one a day.

On 60-day leave
The most welcome sight that Carey has seen since General Patton rode through the Meosburg camp in a tank about 2 p. m. on April 29 is the Carey farm where the veteran of 35 months of army service expects to spend most of his 60-day leave before he goes to Atlantic City for two weeks of "rest camp" in a beach hotel.

3 Countians Are Home From Reich War Prison Camps

Three Adams countians serving with the American forces on the Western front, and who were captured by the Germans over varied periods, have been liberated and are now at home on extended furloughs.

T. Sgt. George R. Lee

T. Sgt. George R. Lee, who built his own radio set in a German prison camp and helped plan two escape attempts that failed, told a reporter for The Gettysburg Times on Wednesday that the worst thing about the year and a half he spent as a Nazi prisoner was "living behind barbed wire all the time."

"It sort of gets you after awhile," the young radio operator-gunner explained, as he told how the Nazis thwarted one escape attempt and how the failure of the RAF to make an expected night raid made the second "break" impossible.

Sergeant Lee, who thinks he may have about 161 points toward a discharge, is spending a 60-day leave at the home of his sister, Mrs. Jennie E. Boyd and his mother, Mrs. Besse (Vaughn) Lee, 232 West Middle street. From here he goes to Miami Beach, Fla. He holds the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf clusters and may qualify for the DFC.

After the war he hopes to go back into flying, maybe as a transport flyer on a trans-Atlantic line.

Plane Catches Fire
Sergeant Lee was a radio-gunner on a B-17 Flying Fortress and on his 23rd bombing mission over Germany on October 9, 1943, when his ship was set afire by fire from a swarm of "about 500" Nazi fighters that attacked the un-escorted formation of about 120 B-17 bombers.

SERGEANT LEE

Five miles from the target, the Fortress struck and a wing of the Fortress caught fire. As the flames crept nearer the gas tanks the pilot held the ship on its course, released its load of bombs on the Luftwaffe plane factories of Anklam, and then

Sgt. Charles B. Coffman

The American prisoners of war who met his pilot at the prison camp near Meosburg where he was liberated by General George S. Patton's Third Army, did Sgt. Coffman meet any of the members of his crew.

Some of them were more successful at escaping capture than he and ran at large over Belgium for about a month before they were rounded up. According to Sgt. Coffman, from reports he was able to gather from fellow prisoners, two of the crew, all of which landed safely, were reported killed later under unknown circumstances.

Sgt. Coffman landed in the middle of a field after bailing out and hurt his ankles so that he was unable to walk at first. No sooner had he hit the ground than an old farmer appeared with a bundle of civilian clothes for him. Later with the help of a young boy about fourteen who spoke broken English, he made the bewildered Sergeant understand that he had landed among friends and that he could expect to be back in England within about a month.

The new morning he was trapped by a traitor, and Gestapo agents who arrived in a 1935 Ford took him into custody.

Only the Red Cross packages, shared by all the Allied prisoners of the Nazis excepting the Russians, kept Pfc. Newell E. Carey, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carey, Gettysburg, R. I., and his companions from becoming the living skeletons that were typical of the Russian inmates of the Nazi prison at Meosburg.

Carey was in action with the 81st Infantry of the Third Army, 89th Division, from August 5 last year until he was taken prisoner September 13. "The guard wasn't tough at first," Carey recalled. "We went across France so fast that the only Germans we saw were ones that somebody else had not to first. They were dead, wounded or prisoners. But when we got close to the Moselle the Jerries made a stand and it was really tough."

DERAILMENT AT IDAVILLE BLOCKS READING TRACKS

Traffic on the Gettysburg-Harrisburg branch of the Reading railroad was blocked for nearly 24 hours after nine freight cars near the middle of a 34-car train were derailed on a curve just west of Idaville Station at 1:54 p. m. Saturday.

Thirty-four cars ahead of the derailed section were taken on to Gettysburg by the two locomotives drawing the long train, most of which was to be cut over onto Western Maryland track enroute to Baltimore.

Eleven cars and the caboose, which remained on the tracks block of the overgrown cars, were pulled back to Starner's and put on a siding to allow a work train from Harrisburg to begin track clearance work.

No one was injured in the derailment, all members of the crew being either in the locomotive cab or in the caboose with Conductor Mahlon P. Hartwell.

The track was cleared early Sunday afternoon by returning some of the cars to the rails and by moving others from the rocks. Several of the cars had toppled down an embankment on the inside of the curve while others came to a stop crosswise on the single track.

Most of the cars were loaded with heavy freight, including grain, cement, fire brick and pipe. Some grain spilled and some cement was lost from a "hopper" car.

The cause of the derailment was not given officially. Members of the crew estimated that the train was traveling only 12 or 15 miles an hour.

The Saturday evening passenger train from Harrisburg was able to go only as far as Starner's. No through tickets to Gettysburg were sold at Harrisburg that evening and passengers picked up along the line with destinations beyond Starner's were delivered by automobile.

CGE OF COUNTY HOLDS ANNUAL MEET ON SUNDAY

"Reaching the Unreached," the keynote of the meeting, was the subject of the principal address to the 46th annual convention of the Adams County Council of Christian Education held Sunday night at the Rev. Norman Webster of Philadelphia, State Young People's superintendent.

The meeting represented a total of 16,131 church members in Adams county, and 11,569 Sunday school students. A net gain in all divisions of Christian education was reported.

In addition to the main address there were two talks by Mr. Zacharias of the Adult Division of the Bureau of Christian Education in Harrisburg and Claude Meckley, Hanover postmaster.

Winebrenner, Gettysburg; treasurer: Mrs. Lloyd Garrison, superintendent: Children's division: Mrs. Emma Howard, Gettysburg; Superintendent of Temperance: Miss Nellie Radtke-Pager, Biglerville; Young People's Superintendent: Harry Scholtz, Hanover; superintendent of Christian Education, and Dr. Ralph Heim of the Lutheran seminary, S. P. University of School Administration.

The Rev. John Ehrhart, Fairfield, was elected superintendent of evangelism and missionary work to replace the Rev. A. P. Longenecker of Gettysburg, who resigned, and Merrill Yoho, New Oxford, was elected vice-president for the first time.

One hundred seventy-eight delegates representing 82 Sunday schools attended.

Army Discharges

Edward S. Taylor

Pvt. Edward S. Taylor, York Springs, R. I., was honorably discharged from the army on Saturday at the Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C. He had been in the service one year, 11 months and 29 days.

Taylor was wounded in the right hand in action against the Germans near Rome June 4, 1944. He had been overseas since April, 1944. He was returned to the states last August 31 and had been stationed at Asheville, N. C. Indianmown Gap, Pa., and at the Walter Reed hospital.

Informed Son Is Wounded In Pacific

William Borserman, Johnson, who enlisted in the Navy in the week following the Pearl Harbor attack, was recently wounded in action in the Pacific area, according to word received this week by his father, Lemuel Borserman, who has been spending several days in East Berlin his former home attending to business.

Borserman, a grandson of Amos Borserman, late of East Berlin, was employed by the Western House Corp., Puttman sector, entering the service. He has seen action in numerous engagements and was awarded the Silver Star among other decorations. The wound is reported to be in his leg and it is expected that he will be hospitalized for several months.

GETTYSBURGIAN RESCUES LOCAL AVIATOR AT SEA

lock of Jap Zeros, he abandoned his plane and later was rescued by an American destroyer. One of the destroyer's rescue party was a Gettysburg young man who cannot be identified for security reasons.

The Gettysburg Times learned of the rescue and the participation therein by a Gettysburg man through a reliable source.

A short time ago a Gettysburg naval officer was a guest at a dinner aboard the destroyer. During the course of the dinner the destroyer officers learned that their guest was from Gettysburg. One of them spoke up and said: "By the way, we rescued a young flier by the name of Winthrop Hanawalt from Gettysburg just a short time ago. He had been shot down during an aerial engagement with the Japs. And one of the members of our crew who served with the rescue party is also from Gettysburg. And now you, also from Gettysburg, are our guest at dinner. Small world, isn't it?"

Hanawalt's Story

On May 14 The Gettysburg Times carried the following special dispatch which refers to Hanawalt's being shot down at sea:

"Ensign Winthrop R. Hanawalt, USNR, of Gettysburg, a dive-bomber pilot on this ship, aircraft carrier, settled a grudge against the Japanese yesterday with the unusual achievement of killing a Japanese army officer mounted on horseback with 50mm. cannon fire from an airplane. He did this over Okinawa, a day after he had returned to flying after being forced to make a water landing and abandon his plane, which had been damaged by enemy anti-aircraft fire."

"Ensign Hanawalt" and his air-craftman, Robert V. Hays, aviation cadetman 3 C, were flying their new plane over Okinawa and had attacked anti-aircraft positions at Naha airfield as their primary target.

"It was very difficult," said Hanawalt, "as our dives directly on these positions presented the enemy with a no-deduction shot. The return fire was very accurate and certainly scared the hell out of me."

"As I pulled out from the dive I saw a Jap army officer riding a horse along a country road and killed him with my 50mm. cannon fire."

OPPOSE PLACETINE DRAFT

The Gettysburg camp of the Sons of Union Veterans has adopted a resolution opposing placetines and has forwarded notice of that action to Senator Robert A. Taft, the Memorial Day speaker here; Congressman Chester Gros and national officers of the Sons of

LOCAL FLIER IS HOME FROM GERMAN PRISON

Staff Sergeant Eugene Purnell, ball-turret gunner of a Flying Fortress, who was shot down over northern France March 4, 1944, and liberated May 31, returned to Gettysburg on a 60-day furlough June 1. He arrived in the United States May 29 after spending 14 months in Stalag 17-B, a German prison camp near Vienna. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Purnell of Gettysburg.

At the time he was freed, Sgt. Purnell and 36 other prisoners were being evacuated from the prison camp and sent north to escape the advancing Americans. They were overtaken by advance elements of General Alexander Patch's Seventh Army in a woods where prisoners and their guards had stopped to rest. The guards, members of the Volksturm, did not resist. They were all unarmed, the sergeant said, and their guns were rusty so that they probably couldn't have been fired.

Brother in Europe

Sgt. Purnell spent two months in England with the 8th Airforce and was shot down on his second mission. He trained at Sioux City, Iowa, and was inducted Nov. 10, 1942. He has a brother, Pfc. Frederick Purnell, who is with the infantry in Europe.

The plane on which Sgt. Purnell was serving at the time he was forced to jump near St. Quentin, France, was struck repeatedly by anti-aircraft which destroyed its fuel supply. All the crew are alive now, Sgt. Purnell said, except one man, whose parachute failed to open. After his capture, however, Sgt. Purnell never saw his comrades.

On leave from the Reception Station at Ft. Dix, N. J., Sgt. Purnell has orders to report to the Army Air Forces Redistribution Center, Miami Beach, Fla., Aug. 2.

Sgt. Purnell holds the Air Medal, Presidential Unit Citation with two palms, the Good Conduct Medal and the European Theater Ribbon with two battle stars.

VFW POST GETS OPTION TO BUY BUEHLER HOME

Gettysburg Post No. 15 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars today announced the purchase of an option to buy the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guyon E. Buehler, 249 Carlisle street, as a community service center and home for veterans, and a $25,000 public subscription quota for the purchase and equipment of the home and service to veterans and their families.

As part of its public campaign for funds to finance its community service plan for veterans and to defray the cost of purchase and maintenance of the home, the veterans have designated the first week in July as "V.F.W. Week" and the fourth of July as "V.F.W. Booster Day."

To Recognize Donors

All citizens who contribute more than $25 to the organization composed of veterans of overseas service and its women's auxiliary will have their names engraved upon a bronze plaque to be set in a place of honor on the wall of the new post home.

Tentative plans were also announced for a recruiting car to be located in center square on Flag Day and at other times to be announced later for the purpose of registering new members and members of the Auxiliary which is to be organized at the home of Clyde Berger, 339 Carlisle street, at a meeting Monday evening. Wives, mothers and sisters of the Veterans throughout the county are invited to attend. All women related to servicemen in the organization or serving overseas are urged to attend whether or not they have been contacted. Two members of the Auxiliary of the Hanover post of the V.F.W. will be present to aid in the establishment of the organization.

The post has also announced plans for a memorial plaque to be engraved with the names of all men from Adams county who have given their lives in the war.

SELL FARM PROPERTY

H. H. Wilson and Mary D. Wilson, Cumberland township, have sold their farm, crops, stock and equipment to George P. Long and Blanche Long, Sparks, Md. Possession will be given on or before September 1. The sale was made through John C. Bream.

ATTENTION! Navy, Marines, Coast Guard

A new Post Office and Navy Department regulation definitely prohibits the mailing of newspapers to persons in the Navy, Marines and Coast Guard outside the Continental United States unless specifically requested by letter and paid for by someone other than the publisher. The new order is similar to the one invoked by the Post Office and the War Department two years ago.

The new restriction becomes effective July 1, and after that date The Gettysburg Times is prohibited from sending its daily or service edition to any person in the Navy, Marines and Coast Guard outside the Continental United States unless said person specifically requests the paper. The request must be made in writing. The subscription must be paid for by the recipient or by some one other than the publisher.

The new order affects all newspapers in the United States. The Gettysburg Times, believed to be the first newspaper to send its editions FREE to all persons in all branches of the service, inaugurated this service in 1940. Two years later, because of the rationing of newsprint, a special Service Edition, containing all the local news of Adams County, and stripped of all commercial advertising, was substituted and addressed to Adams countians all over the world, without charge. Two years ago the Army and the Post Office department, in order to conserve shipping space, barred FREE newspapers outside the U. S. and directed that all such subscriptions must be paid for by someone other than the publisher. The Navy and the Post Office department now evoke a similar regulation, effective July 1.

Those in service, outside the United States, who desire to continue receiving The Gettysburg Times are urged to order their subscription by mail now . . . or parents, brothers, sisters or any other individual may order a subscription for some loved one in service by writing The Times now and paying for the subscription in advance, either by the month or by the year.

William A. Beales Dies Of Wounds In Pacific Theatre

Seaman First Class William A. Beales, 38, a member of the Seabees for two years and veteran of 18 months' overseas service, has died of battle wounds received in action in the Pacific. Navy Department telegrams to the family disclosed Wednesday morning.

No date was given and no details of the nature of the wounds or the manner in which they were received. On Tuesday his mother, Mrs. E. Mae Beales, and his wife, Mrs. Mary (Dunkle) Beales, both of West Middle street, received letters written by "Bill" on May 29.

The family has never known where "Bill" was since he left Hawaii several months ago. They believed he was on Iwo Jima for a time but they do not know whether that is where he received his fatal wounds.

S I/C Beales was widely known in this community to a host of friends as a clerk in the Peoples Drug store on Baltimore street and as an active member and former president of the Gettysburg Lions club, which organization he served for several years as chairman of the committee on blind work.

Inducted June 4, 1943

"Bill" Beales was inducted into the armed forces at Harrisburg on June 4, 1943, and entered active service a week later. He was assigned to the Construction Battalion in the Navy and was sent to Camp Peary, Virginia, where he trained until December, 1943, when he went to the Pacific. He was stationed in Hawaii until several months ago.

From letters to members of his family and friends here they believe he had been helping with the construction of airfields on Iwo Jima.

"Bill" was for a number of years an active member of the Gettysburg Fire company and now is the second member of that organization to make the supreme sacrifice in World War II. The first was Corp. Horace M. Bushman, who was killed in Normandy last June.

He also was a member of the Presbyterian church here and is the fourth "gold star" name on the church Honor Roll.

"Bill" was entering the last month of his one-year term as president of the Gettysburg Lions club when he was inducted two years ago.

High School Grad
A son of the late C. William Beales, former state senator and representative in Congress for this district, and Mrs. Beales, "Bill" was graduated from Gettysburg high school in 1928. During this senior year he was student manager of the football team.

Later he attended the pharmacy school at Ohio Northern, where his father formerly had studied.

Surviving besides his wife and mother are an older brother, Charles A. Beales, North Stratton street; and four sisters: Mrs. Frank A. Hetzel, Harrisburg; Mrs. Elwood Myers, Harrisburg; Mrs. Harold Wentz, Baltimore street, and Mrs. Joseph Patterson, Jr., Ellicott City, Md.

In a letter received by a friend Tuesday afternoon S. I/C Beales stated: "V-E day out here was just another day. Work went on as usual as we went to get this one over too. The ending of the European war certainly will hasten the end of this one out here. . . . We are now living in a permanent camp—much better living conditions and our meals are better. We get fresh meat about twice a week but I would like to have it more often and am often glad that I am a light eater. "There probably will be quite a few of the fellows coming home from the European side and a lot of them certainly are deserving of it but I still envy those that get back now. My 18 months overseas seem a lot longer than that and to those in the Army that have been over for three years or more it must seem ages and ages. But this war cannot last forever. That is one consolation we all have."

Allen A. Larson Is Commissioned
Master Sgt. Allen A. Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric F. Larson, Buffalo avenue, has received his commission as second lieutenant after completing a course in O.C.S., in France.

Lt. Larson, who is now located in Munster, Germany, has been overseas for two years.

MADE 2ND LIEUTENANT
Sgt. John B. Stevens, 21, son of Mrs. John P. Stevens, 524 Carlisle street, extended, has been promoted to 2nd lieutenant, his mother has been advised. Lt. Stevens is serving with the 28th Division in Germany.

He has been in service since February, 1942, and has been overseas almost two years. He attended Gettysburg high school before entering service.

Lt. John M. Hock Arrives At Home

First Lt. John M. Hock, Jr., who was liberated from a German prisoner of war camp on April 29, arrived Friday night and will spend two months with his wife, Mrs. Irene McGlaughlin Hock, Gettysburg, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hock, Chambersburg. He will report to Miami Beach, Fla., on August 1.

Lieutenant Hock was stationed in England, and was a navigator on a Flying Fortress when he was captured by the Germans on April 18, 1944, after his plane had been downed. He was at Moosburg camp at the time of his liberation.

3 Countians Are Home From Reich War Prison Camps

Three Adams countians serving with the American forces on the Western front, and who were captured by the Germans over varied periods, have been liberated and are now at home on extended furloughs.

T. Sgt. George R. Lee

T. Sgt. George R. Lee, who built his own radio set in a German prison camp and helped plan two escape attempts that failed, told a reporter for The Gettysburg Times on Wednesday that the worst thing about the year and a half he spent as a Nazi prisoner was "living behind barbed wire all the time."

"It sort of gets you after awhile," the young radio operator-gunner explained, as he told how the Nazis thwarted one escape attempt and how the failure of the RAF to make an expected night raid made the second "break" impossible.

Sergeant Lee, who thinks he may have about 101 points toward a discharge, is spending a 60-day leave at the home of his sister, Mrs. Jennie E. Boyd and his mother, Mrs. Bessie (Vaughn) Lee, 232 West Middle street. From here he goes to Miami Beach, Fla. He holds the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf clusters and may qualify for the DFC.

After the war he hopes to get back into flying, maybe as a transport flyer on a trans-Atlantic line.

Plane Catches Fire

Sergeant Lee was a radio-gunner on a B-17 Flying Fortress and on his 23rd bombing mission over German-held territory on October 9, 1943, when his ship was set afire by fire from a swarm of "about 200" Nazi fighters that attacked the un-escorted formation of about 120 Yank bombers.

Five miles from the target the Luftwaffe struck and a wing of the Fortress caught fire. As the flames crept nearer the gas tanks the pilot held the ship on its course, released its load of bombs on the Luftwaffe plane factories of Anklam, and then

Sgt. Charles B. Coffman

The American prisoners of war were on the march from Nuremberg to Moosburg immediately before the German collapse when the guard halted the column and gathered around the prisoners to watch when they received word that President Roosevelt had died, Sgt. Charles B. Coffman, recently liberated and returned to this country said. "They wanted to see our reaction," he added, "but they were disappointed. Later we halted in a woods and a bugler among the prisoners blew taps."

Sgt. Coffman, nose-gunner of a B-24 Liberator was shot down over Belgium April 22, 1944 on his first mission over Europe. His plane was returning from one of the first 4,000-plane raids on Hamm and Coln with two engines shot out when the other engines failed and the crew was forced to bail out. The son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Coffman, 12 Buford avenue, Sgt. Coffman "landed in the middle of the Belgian underground on the day before his twenty-second birthday, woke up the following morning at the age of twenty-two looking down the muzzle of a gun thrust into the haystack" where he had spent the night.

Some of them were more successful at escaping capture than he and ran at large over Belgium for about a month before they were rounded up. According to Sgt. Coffman, from reports he was able to gather from fellow prisoners, two of the crew, all of which landed safely, were reported killed later under unknown circumstances.

Sgt. Coffman landed in the middle of a field after bailing out and hurt his ankles so that he was unable to walk at first. No sooner had he hit the ground than an old farmer appeared with a bundle of civilian clothes for him. Later, with the help of a young boy about fourteen who spoke broken English, he made the bewildered Sergeant understand that he had landed among friends and that he could expect to be back in England within about a month.

The next morning he was trapped by a traitor, and gestapo agents who arrived in a 1935 Ford took him into custody.

Pfc. Newell E. Carey

Only the Red Cross packages, shared by all the Allied prisoners of the Nazis excepting the Russians, kept Pfc. Newell E. Carey, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carey, Gettysburg R. 3, and his companions from becoming the living skeletons that were typical of the Russian inmates of the Nazi prison at Moosburg.

A prisoner of the Germans for seven months and 17 days, Pfc. Carey was liberated by Patton's

PFC. CAREY

Third Army on April 29. He reached his home near Seven Stars Monday evening and recounted his adventures to a reporter for The Gettysburg Times Tuesday afternoon.

Carey, who with his two brothers can account for a total of 12 years of army service for the Carey family, lost 20 pounds or more during his days in the Nazi prisons where the food became steadily worse and the number of meals dropped from three to two and then to one a day.

On 60-Day Leave

The most welcome sight that Carey has seen since General Patton rode through the Moosburg camp in a tank about 2 p. m. on April 29 is the Carey farm where the veteran of 35 months of army service expects to spend most of his 60-day leave before he goes to Atlantic City for two weeks of "rest camp" in a beach hotel.

Carey was in action with the 317th Infantry of the Third Army, 80th Division, from August 5 last year until he was taken prisoner September 13. "The going wasn't tough at first," Carey recalled. "We went across France so fast that the only Germans we saw were ones that somebody else had got to first. They were dead, wounded or prisoners. But when we got close to the Moselle the Jerries made a stand and it was really tough."

DERAILMENT AT IDAVILLE BLOCKS READING TRACKS

Traffic on the Gettysburg-Harrisburg branch of the Reading railroad was blocked for nearly 24 hours after nine freight cars near the middle of a 54-car train were derailed on a curve just west of Idaville Station at 2:54 p. m. Saturday.

Thirty-four cars ahead of the derailed section were taken on to Gettysburg by the two locomotives drawing the long train, most of which was to be cut over onto Western Maryland tracks enroute to Baltimore.

Eleven cars and the caboose, which remained on the tracks block of the overturned cars, were pulled back to Starner's and put on a siding to allow a work train from Harrisburg to begin track clearance work.

No one was injured in the derailment, all members of the crew being either in the locomotive cab or in the caboose with Conductor Mahlon P. Hartzell.

The track was cleared early Sunday afternoon by returning some of the cars to the rails and by moving others from the roadbed. Several of the cars had toppled down an embankment on the inside of the curve while others came to a stop cross-wise on the single track.

Most of the cars were loaded with heavy freight, including grain, cement, fire brick and pipe. Some grain spilled and some cement was lost from a "hopper" car.

The cause of the derailment was not given officially. Members of the crew estimated that the train was traveling only 12 or 15 miles an hour.

The Saturday evening passenger train from Harrisburg was able to go only as far as Starner's. No through tickets to Gettysburg were sold at Harrisburg that evening and passengers picked up along the line with destinations beyond Starner's were delivered by automobile.

CCE OF COUNTY HOLDS ANNUAL MEET ON SUNDAY

"Reaching the Unreached," the keynote of the meeting, was the subject of the principal address to the 46th annual convention of the Adams County Council of Christian Education delivered Sunday night by the Rev. Norman Webster, of Philadelphia, state Young People's superintendent.

The meeting represented a total of 16,131 church members in Adams county and 11,699 Sunday school students. A net gain in all divisions of Christian education was reported.

In addition to the main address there were two talks by Mr. Zacharias of the Adult Division of the Bureau of Christian Education in Harrisburg and Claude Meckley, Hanover postmaster.

Charles Gentzler, of East Berlin, was reelected president. Other officers reelected include: Cyrus Bucher, Biglerville; Henry Burkhar, Orrtanna; Elmer Schildt, Taneytown; Cormann Day, Gardners, and Luther Lady, Biglerville; vice presidents: Mrs. Russel Stoops, Gettysburg, corresponding secretary; T. J. Winebrenner, Gettysburg, treasurer; Mrs. Lloyd Garretson, superintendent Children's division; Mrs. Emma Howard, Gettysburg, Superintendent of Temperance; Miss Nellie Raffensperger, Biglerville, Young People's Superintendent; Harry Bair, Hanover, superintendent of Christian Education, and Dr. Ralph Heim of the Lutheran seminary, superintendent of School Administration.

The Rev. John Ehrhart, Fairfield, was elected superintendent of evangelical and missionary work to replace the Rev. A. P. Longenecker, of Gettysburg, who resigned, and Merrill Yohe, New Oxford, was elected vice-president for the first time.

One hundred seventy-eight delegates representing 52 Sunday schools attended.

Edward S. Taylor

Pvt. Edward S. Taylor, York Springs R. 2, was honorably discharged from the army on Saturday at the Walter Reed General hospital, Washington, D. C. He had been in the service one year, 11 months and 29 days.

Taylor was wounded in the right hand in action against the Germans near Rome June 4, 1944. He had been overseas since April, 1944. He was returned to the states last August 31 and had been stationed at Asheville, N. C., Indiantown Gap, Pa., and at the Walter Reed hospital.

When he met his pilot at the prison camp near Moosburg where he was liberated by General George S. Patton's Third Army, did Sgt. Coffman meet any of the members of his crew.

Informed Son Is Wounded In Pacific

William Bosserman, Johnstown, who enlisted in the Navy in the week following the Pearl Harbor attack, was recently wounded in action in the Pacific area, according to word received this week by his father, Lemuel Bosserman, who has been spending several days in East Berlin, his former home, attending to business.

Bosserman, a grandson of Amos Bosserman, late of East Berlin, was employed by the Westinghouse Corp., Pittsburgh, before entering the service. He has seen action in numerous engagements and was awarded the Silver Star among other decorations. The wounds are reported to be in his legs and it is expected that he will be hospitalized for several months.

GETTYSBURGIAN RESCUES LOCAL AVIATOR AT SEA

When Ensign Winthrop R. Hanawalt, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hanawalt, 333 Baltimore street, a dive-bomber pilot aboard an aircraft carrier was shot down over the Pacific during a "dog-fight" with a flock of Jap Zeros, he abandoned his plane and later was rescued by an American destroyer. One of the destroyer's rescue party was a Gettysburg young man who cannot be identified for security reasons.

The Gettysburg Times learned of the rescue and the participation therein by a Gettysburg man through a reliable source.

A short time ago a Gettysburg naval officer was a guest at a dinner aboard the destroyer. During the course of the dinner the destroyer officers learned that their guest was from Gettysburg. One of them spoke up and said: "By the way, we rescued a young flier by the name of Winthrop Hanawalt, from Gettysburg, just a short time ago. He had been shot down during an aerial engagement with the Japs. And one of the members of our crew who served with the rescue party is also from Gettysburg. And now, you, also from Gettysburg, are our guest at dinner. Small world, isn't it?"

Hanawalt's Story

On May 14 The Gettysburg Times carried the following special dispatch which refers to Hanawalt's being shot down at sea:

"Ensign Winthrop R. Hanawalt, USNR, of Gettysburg, a dive-bomber pilot on this ship (aircraft carrier) settled a grudge against the Japanese yesterday with the unusual achievement of killing a Japanese army officer mounted on horseback with 20mm. cannon fire from an airplane. He did this over Okinawa, a day after he had returned to flying after being forced to make a water landing and abandon his plane, which had been damaged by enemy anti-aircraft fire.

"Ensign Hanawalt and his air-crewman, Robert V. Hays, aviation radioman 3 C, were flying their new plane over Okinawa and had attacked anti-aircraft positions at Naha airfield as their primary target.

"It was very difficult," said Hanawalt, "as our dives directly on these positions presented the enemy with a no-deflection shot. The return fire was very accurate and certainly scared the hell out of me."

OPPOSE PEACETIME DRAFT

The Gettysburg camp of the Sons of Union Veterans has adopted a resolution opposing peacetime conscription and has forwarded notice of that action to Senator Robert A. Taft, the Memorial Day speaker here; Congressman Chester Gross, and national officers of the Sons of Veterans.

LOCAL FLIER IS HOME FROM GERMAN PRISON

Staff Sergeant Eugene Purnell, ball-turret gunner of a Flying Fortress, who was shot down over northern France March 4, 1944, and liberated May 31, returned to Gettysburg on a 60-day furlough June 1. He arrived in the United States May 29 after spending 14 months in Stalag 17-B, a German prison camp near Vienna. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Purnell of Gettysburg.

At the time he was freed, Sgt. Purnell and 96 other prisoners were being evacuated from the prison camp and sent north to escape the advancing Americans. They were overtaken by advance elements of General Alexander Patch's Seventh Army in a woods where prisoners and their guards had stopped to rest. The guards, members of the Volksturm, did not resist. They were ill trained, the sergeant said, and their guns were rusty so that they probably couldn't have been fired.

Brother in Europe

Sgt. Purnell spent two months in England with the 8th Airforce and was shot down on his second mission. He trained at Sioux City, Iowa, and was inducted Nov. 10, 1942. He has a brother, Pfc. Frederick Purnell, who is with the infantry in Europe.

The plane on which Sgt. Purnell was serving at the time he was forced to jump near St. Quentin, France, was struck repeatedly by anti-aircraft which destroyed its fuel supply. All the crew are alive now, Sgt. Purnell said, except one man, whose parachute failed to open. After his capture, however, Sgt. Purnell never saw his comrades.

On leave from the Reception Station at Ft. Dix, N. J., Sgt. Purnell has orders to report to the Army Air Forces Redistribution Center, Miami Beach, Fla., Aug. 2.

Sgt. Purnell holds the Air Medal, Presidential Unit Citation with two palms, the Good Conduct Medal and the European Theater Ribbon with two battle stars.

County Owned Horse In D.H.
Charles Town, West Va., June 8.—A thrilling dead heat was the highlight of the Wednesday program of the Charles Town Jockey club. L. S. Stewart's Clock Time and Yaf, owned by Mrs. Mildred Plank, Aspers, hooked up in a sizzling stretch duel and the judges were unable to separate them with the aid of the photo finish camera.

It was a battle of youth and age down to the wire with the 7-year-old mare, Clock Time, sticking to her task to stave off challenges of the 3-year-old filly, Yaf.

The struggle came in the Sam Rice, a test of about six furlongs, named for the former Washington ball player who visited the track in company with a group of Washington bowlers. Third money in the field of six went to Wayne Kendrick's Apple A Day.

Jockey Patsy Grant, who makes his home here, drove Clock Time into the wire while Jockey Woodrow Kirk, of Silver Spring, Md., had the mount on Yaf in the event. Stephen finish. Those who backed Clock Time received an across-the-board muel of $280, $200 and $220. Supporters of Yaf had to be satisfied with $560, $550 and $340. Apple A Day returned $340 to show. The running time was 1:19.1-5.

Clock Time went to the front early, shook off a challenge from Apple A Day, but Yaf moved up on the outside to make her bid. The two hooked up leaving the backstretch and from that point to the wire it was a nose and nose struggle with a dead heat a firing decision.

GREAT INTEREST IN COUNTY IN YOUTH PROGRAM

The special committee for the study of the problems of Adams county youth, organized by the Adams County Council of School Administrators, met Monday evening with representatives from Gettysburg, Ardenville, Biglerville, New Oxford and Littlestown to discuss progress in the establishment of youth centers throughout the county.

The groups representing the various communities reported considerable initial success and wide-spread interest among young people and adults for the establishment of "Youth Canteens" and a year-round program of recreation and athletics within the various communities.

Professor C. E. Bihemer, athletic director of Gettysburg college and co-chairman of the special steering committee, outlined the history of the young people's movement and described the function of the committee which he stated was designed to serve only in an advisory capacity with the end in view of giving service to all communities alike.

Communities Report
Discussion of the problems of organizing youth groups in the community was presided over by Guile W. Lefever, principal of Gettysburg high school.

The Rev. Nevill R. Frantz, pastor of the Ardenville Reformed church, reported favorably on public sentiment in that community and said that a building for a "Youth Canteen" had been offered rent-free for a year. He added that lateness of the crops and the rural character of the population had made starting slow at this season.

Report of activities in Biglerville was made by Mrs. Elizabeth Tilton speaking for the Trilogy club, sponsoring agency for the "Youth Canteen" there. Mrs. Tilton described plans in Biglerville to open a canteen at the high school gymnasium the next Friday and appointment of adult and youth committees to manage the enterprise.

Local Canteen Cited
Mrs. Tilton also emphasized the fact that the Trilogy club, a women's service group, does not plan to operate the canteen but intends to allow the young people to manage it themselves under the guidance and leadership of the adults of the whole community. She further stressed the fact that other groups were expected to take active part and pointed out that such a program could succeed only as a corporate enterprise by the whole community in which all civic, business, fraternal and service organizations, take part.

Speaking for Littlestown the Rev. Theodore Bolz of the Littlestown Reformed church said that two committees had been formed from the adult and youth groups with the tentative plan of using the second floor of the Littlestown fire house as contingent upon the consent of the borough council. He added that the offering at the Littlestown high school baccalaureate service has been dedicated to the youth movement and that interest and backing in the community was high. He pointed out that the borough Recreation board and expressed a lively interest and that there was hope of including a number of outings under the Recreation Board's auspices during the summer into an integrated year-round program sponsored by the entire borough and nearby communities.

Immediately following the Rev. Mr. Bolz's remarks, Prof. Lefever spoke of the necessity for making the youth program in all communities active throughout summer and winter and giving full play to the desires, hopes and ambitions of the young people as well and giving their initiative full play. In doing so he cited the energy and resourcefulness of the Gettysburg youth in putting their own "Teen Canteen" into successful operation.

New Oxford Progress
The Rev. Dobbs F. Ehlman, pastor of the New Oxford Reformed church, reported the formation of two committees, one of adults and the other of young people, which had gone far in planning a well-rounded all-year program there. He stated that the greatest obstacles are physical and that the young people had exhibited considerable drive and initiative in working to surmount them. He reported that, as in all communities, the youth of

COUNTY OWNED HORSE IN D.H.

Charles Town, West Va., June 8—A thrilling dead heat was the high point of the Wednesday program of the Charles Town Jockey club. L. S. Stewart's Clock Time and Yaf, owned by Mrs. Mildred Plank, Aspers, hooked up in a sizzling stretch duel and the judges were unable to separate them with the aid of the photo finish camera.

It was a battle of youth and age down to the wire with the 7-year-old mare, Clock Time, sticking to her task to stave off challenges of the 3-year-old filly, Yaf.

The struggle came in the Sam Rice, a test of about six furlongs, named for the former Washington ball player who visited the track in company with a group of Washington bowlers. Third money in the field of six went to Wayne Kendrick's Apple A Day.

Jockey Patsy Grant, who makes his home here, drove Clock Time into the wire while Jockey Woodrow Kirk, of Silver Spring, Md., had the mount on Yaf in the even-Stephen finish. Those who backed Clock Time received an across-the-board mutual of $2.80, $3.00 and $2.20. Supporters of Yaf had to be satisfied with $5.60, $5.60 and $3.40. Apple A Day returned $3.40 to show. The running time was 1:19.1-5.

Clock Time went to the front early, shook off a challenge from Apple A Day, but Yaf moved up on the outside to make her bid. The two hooked up leaving the backstretch and from that point to the wire it was a nose and nose struggle with a dead heat a fitting decision.

Pvt. William C. Schultz is now with Co. C, 26th Bn., Camp Bland, Fla.

GREAT INTEREST IN COUNTY IN YOUTH PROGRAM

The special committee for the study of the problems of Adams county youth, organized by the Adams County Council of School Administrators, met Monday evening with representatives from Gettysburg, Arendtsville, Biglerville, New Oxford and Littlestown to discuss progress in the establishment of youth centers throughout the county.

The groups representing the various communities reported considerable initial success and wide-spread interest among young people and adults for the establishment of "Youth Canteens" and a year-round program of recreation and athletics within the various communities.

Professor C. E. Bilheimer, athletic director of Gettysburg college and co-chairman of the special steering committee, outlined the history of the young people's movement and described the function of the committee which he stated was designed to serve only in an advisory capacity with the end in view of giving service to all communities alike.

Communities Report
Discussion of the problems of organizing youth groups in the community was presided over by Guile W. Lefever, principal of Gettysburg high school.

The Rev. Nevin R. Frantz, pastor of the Arendtsville Reformed church, reported favorably on public sentiment in that community and said that a building for a "Youth Canteen" had been offered rent-free for a year. He added that lateness of the crops and the rural character of the population had made starting slow at this season.

Report of activities in Biglerville was made by Mrs. Elizabeth Tilton speaking for the Trinity club, sponsoring agency for the "Youth Canteen" there. Mrs. Tilton described plans in Biglerville to open a canteen at the high school gymnasium next Friday and appointment of adult and youth committees to manage the enterprise.

Mrs. Tilton also emphasized the fact that the Trinity club, a women's service group, does not plan to operate the canteen but intends to allow the young people to manage it themselves under the guidance and leadership of the adults of the whole community. She further stressed the fact that other groups were expected to take active part and pointed out that such a program could succeed only as a corporate enterprise by the whole community in which all civic, business, fraternal and service organizations take part.

Speaking for Littlestown the Rev. Theodore Boltz of the Littlestown Reformed church said that two committees had been formed from the adult and youth groups with the tentative plan of using the second floor of the Littlestown fire house contingent upon the consent of the borough council. He added that the offering at the Littlestown high school baccalaureate service has been dedicated to the youth movement and that interest and backing in the community was high. He pointed out that the borough Recreation board and expressed a lively interest and that there was hope of including a number of outings under the Recreation Board's auspices during the summer into an integrated year-round program sponsored by the entire borough and nearby communities.

Immediately following the Rev. Mr. Boltz' remarks, Prof. Lefever spoke of the necessity for making the youth program in all communities active throughout summer and winter and giving full play to the desires, hopes and ambitions of the young people as well and giving their initiative full play. In doing so he cited the energy and resourcefulness of the Gettysburg youth in putting their own "Teen Canteen" into successful operation.

New Oxford Progress
The Rev. Dobbs F. Ehlman, pastor of the New Oxford Reformed church, reported the formation of two committees, one of adults and the other of young people, which had gone far in planning a well-rounded all-year program there. He stated that the greatest obstacles are physical and that the young people had exhibited considerable drive and initiative in working to surmount them. He reported that in all communities, the youth of

HS SENIORS HEAR DR. R. GRESH AT BACCALAUREATE
"There can be no doubt about it the frightful social, political and economic perplexities which today confront us have been brought on by the mis-lives of individuals and are the sum total of individual mismanagement," the Rev. Dr. Ralph R. Gresh, pastor of St. James Lutheran church, told the graduating class of Gettysburg high school at the baccalaureate service Sunday evening at St. James church.
Urging youth to fix its eyes on the heavens and set forth with high purpose, Doctor Gresh spoke of "the high calling which is in Christ Jesus" as the hope and salvation of the world. His address, entitled "A High Calling," stressed the force and vigor of youth, as he urged the younger generation not to fall prey to boredom, disillusionment and apathy as they grow older but to press on with the spirit of Christ in their hearts.
H. S. Choir Sings
The large church was filled long before the service commenced as the measured counterpoint of Prelude, Dubois' "Toccata" filled the room. When the music changed to the quickened tempo of Costa's "Triumphal March," clad either in the cassock and surplice of the choir, or the high school's grey caps and gowns, the graduating class marched solemnly in and took its place followed by the faculty.
Doctor Gresh pronounced the invocation, followed by a hymn, read the scripture lesson and led the gathering in prayer. Then, Richard B. Shade, instructor of music in the town schools and organist and choir director at the church, led the high school choir in the traditional anthem "Adoramus Te," after which Doctor Gresh delivered his sermon.
Two offertory anthems, "Holy Redeemer" by Arcadelt and "Glory to God in the Highest" by Whitford were sung as the offering was collected for the support of the AME Zion church followed by a hymn and the recessional "Festival March" by Blackmore, during which the graduating class and faculty marched out, and the postlude "Te Deum Laudamus" by Clausman.

Local Soldier In Augusta Hospital
Augusta, Ga. — Pfc. Wilbur P. Welmer, Gettysburg, son of Alfred Welmer, has arrived at the Oliver General hospital here from overseas for further medical treatment.
Oliver General hospital is one of the Army's great medical institutions, and has a bed capacity of 2,240. It represents the final step in the chain of evacuation from the front lines.
With the war against Japan upmost in the minds of its personnel, Oliver General is making every effort to be ready for the casualties which must inevitably result from the prosecution of the war in the Pacific. Thousands of wounded and sick men from the European Theater also continue to be evacuated and receive treatment here.

TELLS CLUBMEN OF SEMINARY'S WARTIME ROLE
Special emphasis was placed on the role of the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological seminary in the wartime life of this community by Dr. Abdel Ross Wentz, seminary president, in a 20-minute talk to members of the local service clubs Monday evening.
Speaking on the subject, "The Gettysburg Lutheran Theological Seminary," the speaker made brief references to the 119-year history of the institution which he has headed for the last five years, spoke briefly of its educational standards and its economic worth to the community before giving special attention to the role of the seminary in Gettysburg life.
"We're in the war as much as anyone," Doctor Wentz declared, as he pointed out that the seminary has aided with every Red Cross drive, has been well represented on the list of Red Cross blood donors, has provided air raid wardens and aircraft spotters and has given material help with every war bond drive.
"A Clean Record"
Doctor Wentz said he believed that in every war bond drive in the county the seminary could be shown to be among the "upper three or four" bond purchasers. "The seminary has taken its full part in every war effort in the community," he declared. One of five members of each wartime senior class has been going into the navy chaplaincy, he pointed out.
Pointing out that theological students have specific deferments from active military duty in the Selective Service Act, he asserted that in order to furnish a supply of chaplains for the armed forces the theological schools must continue. "The ministry of religion is essential to morale on the home and foreign fronts and Selective Service defers our students for that reason," he observed.
Doctor Wentz asserted that special care is exercised to keep seminaries from becoming a haven for draft dodgers and declared: "I believe the seminaries will come through the war with a very clean record in that respect."

T. Sgt. G. R. Lee
ried to put out the flames by diving, failing in that the pilot headed for Sweden but it soon became apparent the bomber had only a few minutes in the air.
All 11 members of the crew bailed out and all landed without serious injury. The abandoned Ford exploded before it hit the ground.
Injures Right Arm
Lee tore a ligament in his right arm on the cowl of the ship in his leap. He came to earth near his pilot who had suffered a dislocated shoulder. Lee went to the officer's assistance as he awaited the arrival of German troops he had been able to see scurrying toward the area where the parachutes landed. On the way down, he was able to see three German fighter planes that had crashed.
Lee was taken prisoner within 20 minutes as were all other members of his crew with one exception and that man was brought in seven days later.
Lee and his fellow prisoners were loaded on open trucks and hauled through the still-burning town they had just bombed. They were taken to a German air base seven miles from the town where their clothes were taken from them and they were thrown into small unfurnished cells where they received no food for two days although they were given water.
The Americans were marched back to Anklam and blindfolded as they were taken through the town. Lee thinks that was done to prevent the airmen from seeing the effectiveness of their mission.
Taken to Berlin
They were loaded on a train and taken to Berlin and from there to Frankfurt-on-Main, an interrogation center for the Luftwaffe. There Lee refused to confirm information the Germans already had about his unit and the diversionary raid they were making the day they were downed. The young sergeant has a high regard for the ability of the German intelligence service. "They had found the nose of our ship," he said, "and had got a lot of information there. They knew our unit and seemed to be only after confirmation of their date. I gave them my name and rank and serial number and that was all," Lee said.
Five days later he was moved to Stalag 17B, four miles from Krens, Austria, where he remained until the Germans fled westward in April, with their prisoners, from the approaching Russian armies.
Being a non-commissioned officer, Lee did not have to work and when the Germans attempted to force men in his camp to work, they staged a "sit down" strike and spent their time as they pleased. Cards and sports helped pass the time not given over to planning or working toward escapes.
Conduct Classes
Classes were conducted by the American airmen in the camp, which numbered about 20,000 prisoners, but in the winter the buildings where the classes were held were unheated and most of the courses were "frozen out."
In the face of a threat of six months imprisonment in a civilian prison—a punishment meted out to prisoners who were caught violating rules—Lee built a crystal radio set and was able to get regular New York and London news broadcasts. It was on that set that he got the news of D-Day last June and then there was a general sentiment of bets among the prisoners who had been "waiting out" that date since Christmas.
"You could get almost anything in camp by bribing German guards with cigarettes," Lee recalled. That is how he got the crystal for his radio set. He traded a Red Cross parcel to a Frenchman for the headphones and used wiring in the barracks to supply other materials for the set which was torn down and hidden when the Nazis made "shakedown" inspections of the prison quarters. It took about six months to accumulate and build the set in secrecy, he said.
Lost 15 Pounds
A "counter-intelligence" system among the prisoners gave advance tips on Nazi inspections and made it possible to locate the radio before the guards began their check-up.
Lee lost about 15 pounds in camp. "The food was poor and I ate just very much of it. The food situation got steadily worse."

Robert L. Luckenbaugh was arrested on charges of non-support and desertion brought by his wife Clara Luckenbaugh. He was released for a hearing Monday by Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder upon payment of $300 bail.

REBEKAHS HOLD ANNUAL DINNER AT MOUNT JOY
The sixteenth annual banquet of the Mary Gettys Rebekah lodge was held Friday evening at the Mt. Joy Lutheran church, Taneytown road.
Prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. W. F. Rex, church supply pastor, preceding the dinner and was followed by the singing of "America." Group singing during the dinner was led by Miss Viola Sechs with Mrs. Naomi Schwartz playing the accompaniments. Mrs. Robert Fox served as toastmistress.
The following program was presented in the church auditorium: Greetings, Mrs. Mervin Sanders; response, Mrs. Franz Grider; selections by a quartet from Trinity Reformed church, members of which included Mr. and Mrs. Donald Myers, Mrs. Donald Fissel and William Swisher, and accompaniments by Miss Alda Snyder; accordion solo, Miss Doris Rudisill; reading, Mrs. Merle Rudisill.
Methodist Pastor Speaks
The presentation of jewels for the year was made by Mrs. Luther Smith.
The Rev. Floyd A. Carroll, pastor of the local Methodist church, the speaker of the evening, talked on the lodge's motto, "Friendship, Truth and Love."
Closing the program was the singing of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds" and benediction by the Rev. Dr. Ralph R. Gresh, pastor of St. James Lutheran church.
Spring flowers and candles were used in decorating the tables. A roast chicken dinner was served by the women of the church.
The committee on arrangements included Mrs. Robert Fox, Mrs. Mervin Tipson, Miss Ruth Eckert, Mrs. Merle Rudisill and Mrs. Ira Schwartz.

Pfc. N. E. Carey
chimpanzee on a night movement toward the Moselle, Carey's regiment moved on down the river, threw a bridgehead across and took two hills which they were ordered to hold. An hour before Yankee tanks were scheduled to arrive the Germans attacked before dawn and the infantrymen had only mortars, machineguns and rifles against Nazi tanks.
Carey, who was an automatic rifleman, shared a shallow foxhole in a potato patch with a buddy. They covered themselves with potato vines so well that flare-shooting Nazi tankmen failed to discover them in the dim light. Five hours later, when they were the only Americans left on the hill, a German infantryman leveled a rifle at the pair and shouted "Coma, coma." "And we came fast," Carey grinned.
Almost Starved
Carey was one of 80 prisoners taken on that hill and they were marched all that day, loaded into trucks at night and hauled to Limburg. There they were registered and were given sour, heavy loaves of German bread—one loaf to seven men—with a spoonful of syrup and some tea that was mostly water.
"We just about starved there," Carey declared. All of the men suffered from hunger pains. Then they were loaded into boxcars where they spent three days covering a one-night trip to Frankfurt. When word came that Yankee planes were coming the guards wired the car doors shut and fled into the woods. One of the prisoner-packed cars was hit with shrapnel but none of the men was injured. There was one stop for water in those three days "and the weather was hot, too."
Most of Carey's time was spent at Stalag 7A where 23 men in his unit represented seven nationalities but all learned enough German to be able to "make trades" and divide the Red Cross boxes when they came. The soup there had "green stuff" in it that looked like weeds and there was tea that "we wouldn't drink." He said that for a while there was a loaf of bread daily for six to eight men but later a dozen had to share one loaf.
Saved by Red Cross
Only the Red Cross package kept them going and in January and early February there was a period of more than a month when no packages came. He said Mooseburg probably got more packages than some other prison camps because it was a railroad distribution center for the packages from International Red Cross.
Because of his rank, Carey was obliged to work six days a week and if bombers interfered, they worked Sundays, too. The Allies had rail facilities so badly tangled that although the prisoners got up daily at 4 a. m. it usually was noon before they were put to work on bombed railroads or clearing rubble from the streets. After two or three hours of work the trip back to camp was begun and it was usually midnight before the weary men got to bed.
Frequently they "froze" for hours was sent to a German camp at Heydekrug, East Prussia near Memel. He and his companions traveled in the historic "forty and eight," which the Europeans call box cars.

The camp at Heydekrug was the best camp Coffman saw; it was a large camp containing about 3,000 Americans, 2,000 Canadians and 2,000 British.
While he was at Heydekrug some of his fellow prisoners assembled a small radio receiving set with which to listen to Allied broadcasts. Because of the danger involved all were sworn to secrecy—it would have meant death if they had been discovered—and each member of the group used to carry a single part of the radio about in his clothes. They would meet at a certain time each day, assemble the radio, listen to the newscasts, tear the radio down and separate. Thus the prisoners at Heydekrug knew about the Allied invasion of Europe before their German captors.
Stabbed And Bitten
Immediately after the prisoners received word of the invasion, Sgt. Coffman said, the British prisoners were offering five to one bets that the war would be over in two weeks.
From Heydekrug, which the men hated to leave, Sgt. Coffman and his companions were transported to a camp at Kiechelde, Pomerania, not far from the Baltic port of Stettin. When they arrived they were forced to run five kilometers from the station to the camp by a fat pig of a Luftwaffe captain who said "you eat better than we do, now let's see you run." During the ordeal the guards prodded the stragglers with bayonets and one man was later treated for 69 stab wounds. Many others were treated for stab wounds and dog bites suffered at the hands of the guards and there dogs.
The prisoners later learned that the captain's family had all been killed in an American bombing raid. In January of this year, Sgt. Coffman and his companions were transferred to Nuremberg. There they witnessed many heavy bombings of the Nazi shrine city.
Heavy Bombings
One time RAF Mosquitos hit an ammunition dump during the night and the place continued to burn and explode for three days.
Each time the Allied bombers came over the prisoners were forced to take cover in their slit trenches because of the danger of stray bombs. None were hit during their stay at Nuremberg, but on the march to Mooseburg two prisoners were hit when a flight of Thunderbolts smashed a town through which the prisoners had just passed. Later, on that march they fashioned markers to identify themselves, and frequently Allied planes used to fly up and down the column wagging their wings.
During this same march, Sgt. Coffman said, the prisoners were able to watch a tremendous concentration of American heavy bombers cascade tons of destruction on Nuremberg from the vantage point of a distant wheat field.

WILL OBSERVE FLAG DAY WITH PROGRAM HERE
Gettysburg will observe Flag Day with a parade and exercises to be held here the evening of Thursday, June 14. Arrangements for the celebration were completed Tuesday evening at a meeting of the community Flag Day committee at the Elks' home.
The Flag Day address will be delivered by Dr. Robert Fortenbaugh, head of the department of history at Gettysburg college, at exercises over which Judge W. C. Sheely will preside as master of ceremonies. The exercises will be held in the square and will follow the parade.
George Bushman, chairman of the Flag Day committee, announced that the parade will form at the Meade school building at 7:30 p. m. and will move over a route yet to be announced. The column will include members of veterans' organizations, the fire company, Boy and Girl Scout troops and Troop C of the State Guard.
The exercises in the square will begin at 8 o'clock with the playing of "God Bless America" by the Wayne band of Waynesboro. The invocation will be followed by Doctor Fortenbaugh's address.
A special feature of the program this year will be the presentation of an American flag by Burgess Fred C. Pfeiffer in behalf of the borough as a "living memorial to the men of this community who have made the supreme sacrifice in this war."
The presentation, which is intended to become an annual custom here on Flag Day, will be made this year to the local post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The flag will be received by Willard Welker, former Marine Corps corporal, who is a member of the Flag Day committee and a member of the local VFW post. The VFW post will keep the banner for one year and on next Flag Day it will go to another local organization.
There will be special music by the Wayne band and then the audience will be led in the Pledge of Allegiance by two Girl Scouts. The exercises will conclude with "The Star Spangled Banner" and the benediction.
A formal retreat ceremony will be held by Troop C in center square immediately after the program.

Sgt. Boyd Warner With Third Army
Sgt. Boyd E. Warner of 117 Steinwehr avenue, Gettysburg, Pa., is with the Headquarters Company, 393d Inf. Regiment, of the 99th Infantry Division now with the Third U. S. Army in Germany.
He and his buddies of the "Checkboard" Division played leading roles in toppling Hitler's Fortress Germany. While with General Hodges' First U. S. Army, the soldiers of the 99th helped storm through the Siegfried Line, then across the Cologne Plain, and were the first infantry division of First Army to bring its forces up to the Rhine. After crossing the famed river, and participating in cleaning out the Ruhr Pocket, the 99th was transferred to General George Patton's Third Army and assisted in the final grand-slam drive across the Danube to the heart of Bavaria.
"The concussion was so great you could see it pass through the clouds overhead in waves," he said.
Liberated
Fifteen days after leaving Nuremberg the group reached Mooseburg, Austria. During the march several prisoners escaped but most of them were rounded up and returned to Mooseburg a few days after the arrival of the main body.
There on April 29 the American Third Army liberated them. Sgt. Coffman had been a prisoner for little more than a year. Seven days after their freedom the men were all on their way home. They had their first good meal of chicken, "and all the trimmings" in France.
During his captivity the sergeant received 22 letters, one personal package and several Red Cross packages. "I don't know what we would have done without the Red Cross," he said.
At present Sgt. Coffman has a 60-day furlough from Fort Dix, N. J., after which he has orders to return for reassignment. He does not know whether he has enough points for a discharge under the point system but he is in good health and spirits.

WELFARE UNIT TO REORGANIZE
The Advisory Committee of the Adams County Welfare Service voted Tuesday night to amend the by-laws to permit the annual reorganization meeting to be held in July instead of December.
The next meeting, scheduled for July 2 or 3 (the exact date to be announced later) will be the reorganization meeting and will take the form of a picnic or covered dish supper at the home of the Rev. # 'FLAG AND YOUTH' TOPIC OF SPEECH AT DAR MEETING

O. H. Benson, president of the Adams County Free Library association, was the speaker Friday afternoon at the June meeting of the Gettysburg chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution which was held at his home on Lincolnway East.

Mr. Benson, former educator and national Boy Scout executive, presented a talk on "Our Flag and Our Youth." Reflecting his wide experience with young people, Mr. Benson emphasized the fact that "the safety of our flag depends upon the youth of the nation." He showed the close relationship between the flag and our young people's organizations and the resultant character improvement. He pointed out that there are more youth movements in this country than in any other and that they are voluntary. Mr. Benson concluded with the plea that youth be permitted "to find its place in organizations for character building."

Immediately preceding the address Miss Barbara Zeigler accepted for the Marsh Creek Society, Children of the American Revolution, a flag presented by Mrs. Walter H. Danforth on behalf of the senior chapter. Members of the G. A. R. were guests at Friday's meeting.

Name Chairman

Mrs. Danforth, first vice-regent, presided during the business session at which the following committees were appointed: Advancement of American music, Mrs. George Amick; Americanism, Mrs. R. S. # COUNCIL TO GET ENGINEER FOR TIBER FLOOD CONTROL STUDY

Gettysburg borough council members at their June meeting Monday evening authorized the employment of a hydraulics engineer to solve Tiber flood control problems; adopted a new parking ordinance making only minor change in regulations in force here for the last several years; planned the annual survey of streets and alleys preliminary to setting up the street repair program for the season, and authorized a new roof for the engine house.

Decision to secure the services of an engineering specialist was voted after a letter from Gettysburg Throwing company officials urged that course. The council sewer committee concurred in the recommendation.

The throwing company letter placed formally before council that concerns the offer to pay half of the cost of employing the engineer providing that company's share does not exceed $125. The letter followed a conference between company and borough officials on means of controlling flood waters on Buford avenue.

Urges Prompt Action

Last month council considered installation of a new $3,000 storm sewer line across throwing company property but the narrow channel through which the stream passes under a corner of the Throwing company plant was called a "bottle-neck" by some of the councilmen and the whole matter was referred back to the sewer committee.

A special meeting of council will be called, if necessary, to act on the employment of the engineer. The throwing company letter placed a 60-day limit on its offer to help pay expenses and Glenn L. Bream, a property owner on Buford avenue who has been pressing council for action on flood control measures, also urged speed on the project.

One councilman suggested that Gettysburg college might be interested in helping meet the extra expense involved in the project because the college "is directly effected" by the disposal of Tiber flood waters.

Council adopted a new parking ordinance continuing most of the general parking regulations of the old amended and expended ordinance as a more economical means of bringing the parking rules up to date than "patching up" the various standing sections.

The ordinance continues one-hour parking in the square and the two-hour limit in the first two blocks of the four main streets, continued traffic lights at their present locations, designated through streets and authorized the burgess to paint red or yellow no-parking zone lines and to line off the parking areas. Provisions on abandoned cars are continued and penalties of a fine of from $1 to $10 or 10 days in jail remain.

Parking is banned on the north side of the first block of West Middle street and on the west side of North Washington street from Chambersburg street to a point 76 feet south of curb line of Railroad street. Revised ordinance was presented to council by Councilman Harry J. Troxell, chairman of the safety committee.

May Boost Permit Rates

The property committee was authorized to spend up to $200 for parking signs and posts that meet state regulations. E. V. Bullett, Esq., borough solicitor, said he doubted if the old borough signs meet state requirements.

Council took under consideration a proposal to increase digging permit rates in the town, pointing out that present rates are based on labor and material costs in 1933. The highway committee and the borough engineer were directed to confer on levels of higher rates and report back at the next council meeting.

Councilmen authorized the property committee to have a new asbestos shingle roof placed on the engine house at a cost of about $450 when they were faced with a repair bill of $200 to $250 for proposed repairs to one section of the badly leaking present slate roof.

Delaying Street Work

Prolonged line repair work by the Gettysburg Gas corporation is delaying state highway department plans for re-surfacing York street this season, council was told. A number of street openings have been made recently by the utility company and others are planned. LeRoy H. Winebrenner, borough engineer, told council.

The street repair work, which was to have started July 1, may have to be put off until October if the gas company digging is not ended promptly, council heard.

Members of council decided to meet Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the engine house to make a survey of the streets and alleys of the town prior to scheduling street surfacing work for the season. They also will check on curbs and pavements and Councilman Corle invited them to bring galoshes along so they can inspect the Tiber channel in the Buford avenue section.

Spring Cleanup Finished

Mr. Winebrenner told council the annual borough cleanup has been completed with the hauling of 227 truck loads of rubbish from the alleys of the town.

The borough secretary, Mrs. Wil-

FLIES YANKEES OUT OF AUSTRIA

An Eighth Air Force Bomber Station, England (By Mail)—Second Lieutenant John Mitchell, 19, of Gettysburg, Pa., navigator on the 452nd Bomber Group's B-17 Flying Fortress "Gruesome Crewsomeness," recently assumed a different role when he flew with formations of the Eighth Air Force's Third Air Division on a shuttle-flight to Linz, Austria, to return liberated Allied prisoners of war to their native countries.

The flight to Austria was made at the low level of 2,000 feet, and the combat airmen had an opportunity to view the destruction wrought upon the Nazis by the incessant heavy bombing attacks on vital German war industries and transportation lines prior to V-E Day. Many famous cities, such as Cologne, Frankfurt and Nurnburg, once the pride of Germany, now lay exposed and desolate, a skeleton of their former selves.

Lieutenant Mitchell's Fortress landed at an airfield on the outskirts of Linz, Austria, and he immediately began to aid in the loading and handling of the long imprisoned Allied troops, many of them sick and injured.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Crist Mitchell, 144 Carlisle street, Gettysburg. Prior to entering the AAF in June, 1943, Lieutenant Mitchell was a student at Gettysburg high school.

ACCUSE 2 ON TWO CHARGES

The case of Norman I. Bisking, Columbia, and Charles A. Whisler, York, who were charged with assault and battery with an additional charge of larceny from the person against Bisking, was held for York court Tuesday night following a hearing before Justice Lee P. Reary.

Information against the two was signed by Charles E. Bowser, Abbotstown, who claims he was attacked by the men about 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in a field in York. Bowser also charged Bisking with the theft of a gold ring and a sum of money.

Bowser testified he was walking when approached by Bisking and Whisler, who asked him where there was a good place to park and then invited him along to drink some beer. Bowser said he made "a bluff in drinking the beer because he thought they had dope in it."

He testified that after they kept "pounding at him" and took his ring he begged them to give him his ring back and take his money instead. He was not sure how much money he had. Bruises were still visible on his face and neck as the result of the alleged attack.

Officer Ralph R. Shultz, who investigated the case, said he found Bisking and Whisler sleeping in the field and at the time he noticed the ring on Bisking's left hand. After taking them to Squire Reary's home, Officer Shultz said he noticed Bisking drop the ring in a magazine rack. When confronted, about the ring Bisking denied he had it, but recovered it from the magazine rack after further questioning. The ring was identified by L. C. Hamme, son-in-law of Bowser.

Bail was denied Bisking, who is on parole from the Lancaster county jail and cannot secure bail, a representative of the State Parole board, who was present at the hearing, stated. The parole board representative said Bisking was warned to keep out of York county.
